(c) New York Times

Washington — President Carter Friday ordered Assistant Agriculture Secretary Robert Meyer to stop seeking preferential treatment for farmers in California's Imperial Valley, where he owns or leases more than 2,500 acres of valuable irrigated land.

"I really don't feel that anyone in government, including myself, should use his official position to pursue a goal that would result in financial advantage or other advantage for a public official," Carter said.

He was talking to a group of farm writers and editors in the Cabinet Room of the White House.

Carter said he had no information that Meyer's actions, at this point, were illegal.

"But I just don't want to have the accusation of impropriety there," he added.

A federal appeals court recently upheld a 1902 law limiting ownership of land using federally supplied irrigation water to 320 acres for a farmer and his wife.

The Imperial Valley, one of the country's richest cotton, fruit and vegetable areas, uses federally-controlled irrigation water. But the 1902 law has never been enforced and in 1933 the Interior Department wrote an administrative opinion exempting that area because it had private water resources before the federal projects were built.

The appeals court ruled this exemption no longer applied. And, according to the 1902 law, Imperial Valley landowners would have to sell all their holdings above 160 acres each for farmer and wife, who would have to live on the 320 acres they retained. The limit of 160 acres, a quarter of a section, was an arbitrary figure corresponding to the old homestead land grants.

Meyer, appointed by the Carter administration, conceded earlier this week he had been talking with the White House, the Interior Department, and area congressmen urging them to seek another exemption for the Imperial Valley.

But he insisted he had announced to each that he was acting as a private individual and not talking for the administration. He also said Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland had been informed of this and agreed he could do so but only as a private citizen.

"I understand from my staff reports that nothing illegal was done (by Meyer)," Carter said Friday. "But I sent a note to Bob Bergland and told him to stop the effort of Bob Meyer's to determine land policy in the Imperial Valley."

Carter said he believed the 1902 law was bad and should be changed. But in the meantime, he had no alternative but to enforce it.

"The altercation has not been between Washington and farmers, honest farmers in the West," he said. "It has been between farmers in the West and their neighbors wanting to have an easier ability to acquire land."

He said he recognized that 75 years ago 320 irrigated acres was all a husband and wife could handle. But with today's massive development and large machinery, a larger acreage was needed for an economically viable farm, he said.

Bergland was asked later if he had ordered Meyer to stop and we said he had. He also said there was no intention to dismiss Meyer.

Gang awaits ransom jet

Dacca, Bangladesh (AP) — A Japan Air Lines DC8 left Tokyo for Bangladesh Saturday carrying $6 million and six Japanese prisoners to meet ransom demands of hijackers holding 142 hostages aboard another Japanese jetliner.

The five hijackers, identified as members of the ultra-leftist Japanese Red Army and said to be armed with guns and explosives, seized a JAL jet Wednesday over India and forced it to land at Dacca airport.

Japanese Officials in Tokyo said the ransom plane loaded with cartons of 60,000 U.S. $100 bills and the prisoners freed from Japanese jails left Tokyo at 6 a.m. Saturday (4 p.m. CDT Friday).

A JAL spokesman said the plane was slightly behind schedule and it was due to arrive in Dacca at 11:45 a.m. Saturday (12:45 a.m. CDT Saturday), 25 minutes later than originally scheduled.

He also said the hijackers had extended their deadline to 12 noon Saturday — just 15 minutes after the approaching jet is scheduled to touch down at Dacca airport. An earlier 4 a.m. Saturday deadline set by the hijackers passed without apparent incident.

The ransom jet also was carrying 6.6 tons of food, medical supplies and clothing and 76 government and airline officials led by JAL president Shizuo Asada and Hajimi Ishii, a parliamentary minister.

"We will do our best in carrying out the duty requested by the Japanese government," Asada told reporters in Tokyo. He refused to say whether he would offer himself as hostage in exchange for the passengers' freedom.

"The most important issue is how to save the lives of almost 150 persons held now," Ishii said before the departure. "What country is willing to accept the hijackers? I cannot comment at this moment."

A passenger who had been released by the hijackers identified one of them as a radical who bombed several Tokyo offices in 1974. He was released from prison the next year on the demand of terrorists who had occupied the U.S. Embassy in Malaysia.

The Dacca gunmen, becoming edgy and incommunicative while they waited for the ransom plane, had demanded freedom for nine Japanese prisoners, but officials said three of the prisoners refused the offer.

Bangladesh Vice Air Marshal A. G. Mahmud, during two hours of negotiations with the terrorists, informed them of the plans, including the fact that only six of the prisoners would be on the plane from Tokyo, India's national news agency reported.

The agency quoted Mahmud as saying the hijackers listened intently to the information, but he disclosed no other information.

There was no official word on where the air pirates want to go from Dacca.

The hijackers, armed with pistols, grenades and possibly explosives, have threatened to execute passengers one by one.

The five terrorists seized the Japan Air Line DC8 Wednesday after it left Bombay on a Paris-to-Tokyo flight and forced it to land in this South Asian capital.

They freed four passengers Friday — a Japanese woman, an Indonesian woman and an Egyptian couple — bringing to nine the total released. Among those still held were 10 Americans.

Red Army terrorists, who are pledged to foment revolution in Japan, have found refuge in Libya, North Korea and Yemen in the past.

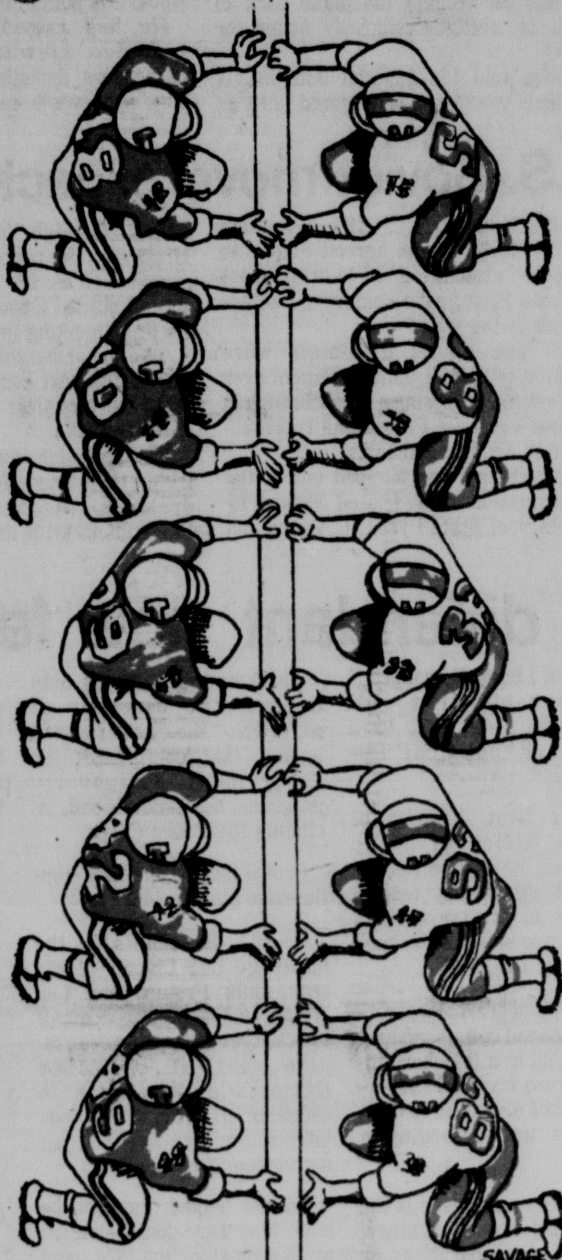

The Foreign Ministry in Tokyo said the Japanese woman freed Friday identified one of the hijackers from mug shots as Norio Sasaki, 29, who was involved in the bombing of the Mitsubishi Heavy Industries building in Tokyo three years ago.

The American hostages are banker John Gabriel and his wife of Montebello, Calif.; former California Assemblyman Walter Karabian of Monterey Park, Calif., and these others not further identified: Eric Weiss, Mr. J. Caldwell, Mr. Alterejos, Mr. G. Sands, Mr. T. Phalen, Mr. J. Chunce and Mr. W. McLean.

Two Americans freed Thursday were Karabian's wife, Carole, and Kurt Krueger of Granada Hills, Calif.

Big Red vs. Big Red

Coach Tom Osborne of Nebraska's Scarlet and Cream: "If they react to their loss to Miami of Ohio the way our players did to the Washington State defeat — get all 'hitched up' and come in here and play like they did against LSU — this game could go right down to the wire."

Coach Lee Corso of Indiana's Cream and Crimson: "How do you beat Nebraska? I know this much, you can't do it with trickery. You have to play good, solid football. They have one of the top teams in the country. But it's not impossible. If we play close to a perfect game and they don't play up to their capacity, then we have a chance to win it. We were a heavy underdog against LSU. So it can be done."

Exon wary of another fiasco

By Lynn Zerschling
Star Staff Writer

Gov. J. James Exon has told Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus that he doesn't want the proposed Norden Dam project to turn into another Mirage Flats fiasco.

Exon, who generally has supported construction of the dam on the Niobrara River, said he thinks some questions need to be answered before the dam is built.

In a letter to Interior Secretary Andrus, released Friday, the governor said he wants to know if the federal Bureau of Reclamation is sure of its projections on the continued availability of water flow along the Niobrara since a "grievous error" was made on another federal dam project in Nebraska.

The Mirage Flats dam, completed in 1974 on the Niobrara near Hays Springs in Sheridan County, was designed as an irrigation project and to protect the area from flood damage.

But, Exon contended, after the project was completed, "not a drop of water was delivered as planned. The project was a complete fiasco in every respect."

The Mirage Flats project draws water from the Box Butte Reservoir. The project is alive but has never been able to store enough water to irrigate all the land expected when constructed.

The Norden Dam project, located in the Springview-O'Neill area would irrigate 77,000 acres. A 180-foot dam near Norden would create a 19-mile long reservoir on the Niobrara River.

The proposed dam has been under attack and most recently was challenged in U.S. District Court by a coalition of environmentalists, farmers and ranchers. Judge Warren Urbom has ordered work on the project halted on the grounds that the environmental impact statement prepared by the Bureau of Reclamation was inadequate.

When he met with bureau officials last week, Exon said he was told that streamflow in the river below the proposed dam would be reduced by half.

"Has sufficient consideration been given to fish and wildlife habitat and downstream irrigators who hold water rights?" Exon asked Andrus.

Since the river flow could be reduced by 50% at times, the governor also wondered if it is possible that the downstream irrigators could pump the river dry.

Other unanswered questions, Exon contended, include:

—the overall construction costs.
—consideration of possible reduction in recreational areas with construction of the dam.

Exon invited Andrus to analyze the Norden Dam project firsthand and to bring along other federal officials to receive a briefing on the dam.

Exon toured the project earlier this week.

Youth In Action

Youth turns out batches of dough

By Patty Beutler
Star Staff Writer

Doug Lorensen knows how to turn dough into dough.

His six open class food entries at the state fair netted him $60 in prize money and that's reason enough to keep on cooking, he figures.

But his mother says Doug has dabbled in the kitchen ever since he was old enough to dip his fingers into the batter bowl.

Egged on by his older sister's prize-winning efforts at the annual fairs, 13-year-old Doug decided he'd show her a thing or two and compete on his own.

His efforts paid off. For the second year in a row Doug brought home five purple ribbons in the youth and for men only categories. His light bread rolls won the youth sweepstakes and Gooches youth award.

Doug says he goes on a baking binge a month before the fair begins. By starting early enough he can allow for mistakes. If a batch of cookies doesn't turn out the way he wants it to, Doug will "usually do it over until it does."

Because he enters only six cookies or rolls in a given category, the rest of the batch with the help of the deep freeze, keeps the family in sweets for weeks.

The Waverly Junior High School eighth-grader admits his own sweet-tooth encourages him to keep on baking. When he's on his own for something more substantial, however, his menu is generally limited to hotdogs and hamburgers.

Doug concedes that much of his baking know-how comes from watching his mother and sister in the kitchen. He still contends his bread beats his sister's, but he says that's because he's got more muscle to knead it with.

A football player, he tackles baking too!

Come fall, Doug puts his muscle to other uses — as a guard and tackle on the eighth grade football team. When not playing on the field, he's got a drum to play in the school band.

In a 4-H livestock club for the past four years, he has raised sheep and shown them at the fair.

As far as his baking goes, Doug says he can't get much done with his busy school and sports schedule.

But he confides that what he likes best about baking is eating the finished product. So when the freezer runs out of goodies, he just might find himself back in the kitchen on weekends.

Lava flow oozes toward hamlet on way to ocean

Kalapana, Hawaii (AP) — A ribbon of red hot lava 900 feet wide and eight miles long oozed down the side of Kilauea volcano Friday toward this evacuated seaside hamlet. "There's no stopping it now. It's going all the way" to the sea, a government scientist said.

Scientists at the Hawaiian Volcano Observatory said the flow was heavy enough and had built up enough momentum to continue to the ocean, even if the eruption stopped.

In its path, however, were 18 homes and the historic Star of the Sea Painted Church, which scientists said would be destroyed as the thick mass moved toward the water. It was within a mile of the sea on Friday morning and was moving at 300 to 400 feet per hour.

The 50 villagers were evacuated from Kalapana Thursday night. There was no panic among them, all veterans of past volcanic eruptions and tidal waves.

Five sightseers who hiked into the area Thursday and had been reported missing turned up safely on Friday. But there was still no sign of two persons believed to have flown into the area Thursday in a single-engine Cessna to view the spectacular eruption from the air.

And the U.S. Coast Guard said wreckage of a Beechcraft plane was sighted on the slopes of nearby Mauna Loa volcano. No Beechcraft plane was reported missing.

Hawaii County Mayor Herbert Matayoshi declared a state of emergency in the area, about 30 miles southeast of Hilo, the largest city on the state's largest island, which is also named Hawaii.

County Civil Defense Director Harry Kim said the flow threatened the cultural and historic center of the community, which is less than 10 miles from the eruption site.

An Army demolition team has been in the area experimenting with methods of diverting lava flows. But scientists told residents that technical problems and a lack of preparation time prevented any effort to halt the approaching lava.

Kilauea, which is one of two active volcanoes in Volcanoes National Park, pumped lava from a rift on its eastern slope, shooting fountains of lava 200 feet high with occasional bursts to 250 and 300 feet.

The last major volcanic eruption in Hawaii came at Mauna Loa, the other volcano in the park, two years ago.

Instruments at the National Park observatory showed strong movement of lava underground, indicating there would be no immediate letup in the eruption.

The spectacular lava fountains are in an area not accessible to the public, but the yellow-orange glow has been visible at night over much of the island. The eruption also is producing heavy smoke which is blanketing most of the island, about 200 miles southeast of Honolulu on the island of Oahu, with a yellowish haze. The National Weather Service issued an air stagnation advisory.

Carter wants black job funds

Washington (AP) — President Carter asked Congress Friday for $500 million to provide jobs for black teenagers, who have a 40% unemployment rate.

The request was in addition to the $1 billion that Congress approved last summer for the new Youth Employment and Demonstration Projects Act, which Carter signed into law eight weeks ago.

Labor Secretary Ray Marshall said the administration was "deeply concerned" by the recent unemployment figures and would "make every effort within the framework of the law" to use the additional money largely for minority youth.

It's Country Music Month

Washington (AP) — President Carter, terming country music "as universal as a sunset and as personal as a baby's smile," signed a proclamation Friday designating October as Country Music Month.

"It is fitting," he proclaimed, "that we acknowledge the importance of a form that reflects so much the lives and hopes of the people who make up our nation and pay tribute to the talented people who have contributed to its growing popularity."

Surveillance probe delayed

Washington (UPI) — Attorney General Griffin Bell, expressing concern about "overbroad" use of subpoenas, won a temporary delay Friday in a Senate panel's investigation of alleged U.S. eavesdropping on Panamanian officials.

At Bell's behest, the Senate subcommittee on separation of powers postponed hearings on allegations the Panamanians learned of the surveillance and used it to blackmail U.S. negotiators of the Panama Canal treaties.

Milk supports stay same

Washington (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland Friday announced he will make no change in the government's $9 a hundred weight support price for milk in the marketing year which begins Saturday.

Bergland added, however, that he is considering a step which could bring more money to dairy farmers by requiring processors who sell surpluses to the government to certify they have paid farmers the full support rate for raw milk.

A Navy spokesman said regulations prohibit discrimination against women who are married, divorced, unmarried with children or pregnant, or against men.

The contest will be held Wednesday.

Park talks to be discussed

Washington (AP) — U.S. and South Korean authorities will meet within 10 days to discuss "terms and conditions" for American investigators to question Tongson Park about alleged influence-buying in Congress, the Justice Department announced Friday.

The United States publicly and privately has asked the South Korean government to return Park to this country to face trial.

Vietnam returns American bodies

Hanoi, Vietnam (AP) — Vietnam officials turned over the remains of 21 American servicemen and one civilian Friday in the fifth such transfer of U.S. bodies released so far.

The United States lists 2,500 Americans still unaccounted for from the Vietnam war, which ended in April 1975, and 700 of them are listed as missing in action.

Failure to make faster progress in returning bodies and accounting for those missing in action has been a major obstacle in relations between the United States and Vietnam's Communist regime.

American soldiers and sailors solemnly carried the small, black metal boxes containing the remains past a saluting honor guard of officers. Then they placed them aboard an Air Force C141 Starlifter cargo plane waiting in sweltering heat and glaring afternoon sunshine.

The bodies were then flown to America's Clark Air Base in the Philippines where they were transferred to larger coffins in preparation for flight to Hawaii Saturday.

Following the transfer ceremony at Hanoi's Gia Lam Airport, Vu Hoang of the Vietnamese Foreign Ministry said: "We have cooperated closely on these humanitarian matters. We need to settle the past perfectly, so we can have a good and sound basis for establishing normal relations between the two countries."

Frank Sieverts, coordinator for prisoner of war and missing in action affairs for the State Department and chief of the joint mission of the Defense and State departments to Hanoi, said names of the military casualties would be released only after the Army's Central Identification Laboratory in Hawaii had confirmed them.

The only name disclosed at the time of transfer was that of Tucker Gougelman, a civilian whose body was released with those of 21 military men. Gougelman, whose family was listed as living in New York, reportedly died in Saigon in June 1976, a year after the former South Vietnamese capital fell to Communist-led forces.

Sixteen of the boxes contained remains identified by the Vietnamese, and Sieverts said he expected it would take 10 days to two weeks to confirm these names. The other five unidentified servicemen's bodies will probably take much longer to check out, he said.

Sieverts said he delivered to the Vietnamese folders containing facts about 30 missing Americans. Each folder contained personal data on a missing man, a brief description of the action in which he was lost and an account of the circumstances when he was last seen.

Hijacker seized aboard plane

Paris (UPI) — A deranged hijacker set off a hand grenade in a jet holding 98 persons Friday night as police firing tear-gas grenades stormed the plane. Officers seized the air pirate, but one passenger died and five were wounded.

Police said they attacked because "the lives of the passengers demanded action." They ripped open the doors of the plane shooting tear-gas as the hijacker hurled his grenade.

Officials said the police fired no bullets.

The 43-year-old hijacker, who was declared mentally incompetent after he shot his father to death as a teen-ager, had demanded access to two of the three largest commercial radio stations in France to broadcast a political message.

The hijacker, identified as Jacques Robert, had been jailed three years ago for holding up the staff of the third station at gunpoint.

Robert also demanded fuel for his commandeered French Air Inter Caravelle jet, whose tanks ran dry shortly after he brought the plane back to Paris on a flight originally bound for Lyon.

Police told the gunman both of his demands would not be honored until he released all aboard the craft.

"Police had to intervene to end this hijacking," Prefect Jean Perier said. "We waited 8½ hours and only made the decision to move in after long attempts to negotiate . . . the lives of the passengers demanded action."

As the police team ripped open the doors of the plane, Perier said, "The hijacker threw a grenade that hit the top of a door and exploded, wounding the people who were standing there."

One man suffered fatal injuries, a second was seriously injured and three others were hurt by shrapnel. The hijacker had earlier shot a stewardess in the arm, but she was reported in good condition.

The dead man reportedly was an employee of the Air Inter airline who was traveling as a passenger. Officials also said a number of other passengers were hit by shrapnel fragments, but they did not need hospital treatment.

There were 91 other passengers and six crewmen aboard the Caravelle with Robert as police moved in.

He had previously released the wounded stewardess and seven passengers, including one infant and one passenger who became ill, and an eighth passenger ran to safety when the hijacker's attention was diverted.

"Suddenly all four side doors of the plane were ripped open from the outside and we knew the police were attacking," said passenger Maurice Tapie, 37. "The hijacker turned and threw his grenade toward the cockpit where it exploded."

"One of the tear-gas grenades hit the hijacker square in the face," passenger Jean Martignoni said. When Robert arrived in handcuffs at police headquarters he had a badly scratch cheek.

Police said Robert had been on probation since being released last March from prison, where he had served three months of a six-month term for theft.

Robert told police he wanted to broadcast a 12-minute message over Radio Europe No. 1 and Radio Monte Carlo, possibly similar to an incoherent statement in favor of liberty and against strikes that he aired three years ago over the commandeered microphone at Radio Luxembourg.

A reporter for that station spoke to Robert during the Orly Airport siege and quoted the gunman as saying: "In 1974 I had a small pistol. Today I have a big one. Stay out of this."

U.S.-Soviet move expected on Middle East talks

United Nations, N.Y. (AP) — America and the Soviet Union agreed Friday to make an "utmost effort" to bring about a Middle East peace conference before the end of the year.

U.S. and Soviet diplomats were expected to issue a joint statement over the weekend proposing a breakthrough in the deadlock over Palestinian representation at Arab-Israeli talks.

The strategy was mapped out at the Soviet mission to the United Nations by Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko. It represented the closest cooperation by the two co-chairmen of the adjourned Geneva conference since its brief meeting in December 1973.

"We may have something to say about this in the next couple of days," Vance told reporters after a 90-minute meeting with Gromyko.

The approach could be centered on trying to persuade Israel to approve the presence at the peace table of Palestinians with links to the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) but not widely identified with the group.

Vance met later with Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan. The U.S. spokesman, Hodding Carter, said that with the discussions continuing "I cannot go into specifics on what was said." He noted that both Vance and Dayan had made "suggestions."

Israel has stated repeatedly that it will not deal with the PLO. It accuses the PLO of being dedicated to the destruction of Israel.

Revised Roget's Thesaurus brings language up to date with culture

Madison, N.J. (AP) — Do you know what a "grunt" is? What does it mean to "frag" somebody? How about "transcendental meditation" and "biofeedback?"

If you've missed these and other developments over the past 15 years, the new, fourth edition of Roget's International Thesaurus will help you catch up.

Dr. Robert Chapman, an English professor at Drew University, edited the new edition.

"I reckon I handled about a half million words - either deleting old ones or adding new ones," he said in an interview. "The third edition came out in 1962, so this new one reflects the history of our culture over the past 15 years."

One of the old phrases dropped from the new edition was "put through a course of sprouts," which is something like being "put through the mill."

Also relegated to the outdated pile was: "Yes sirree, Bob" and "teachify."

But the harsher times we live in brought terms from the Vietnam war and the drug culture. "Grunt" which replaced "GI" as the slang description of an infantryman; and "frag" which during the war meant the killing of another soldier - usually an officer - with explosives.

"In Vietnam, soldiers who didn't like an officer would blow him up with a grenade as he walked in front of them," Chapman explained. "They would say, 'we fragged him,' frag being short for grenade fragments."

Biofeedback is a technique of trying to control emotional states by training oneself, usually with the help of electronic instruments, to modify involuntary body functions such as blood pressure or heartbeat.

Transcendental meditation is an intense concentration, often involving the chanting of a certain word, intended to bring relief from tension and increase awareness.

In addition to slang terms born in Vietnam and in the drug and rock cultures, Chapman says new words like women's lib, gay power and black power are included.

Chapman, 56, who helped edit Funk & Wagnalls Standard College Dictionary, says he cut each page out of the old edition of Roget's and pasted it on a board.

"I had to go through each page and think about which terms should be added and which should be dropped," he said. "It was a slow, methodical step-by-step process that took me about a calendar year of eight-hour days."

In addition to his own list of words, Chapman said he studied research texts, encyclopedias, dictionaries and other thesauri looking for new words.

Future editions, he said, will be updated by computer.

Chicago 7 defendant now federal bureaucrat

Washington (AP) — John R. Froines, a defendant in the Chicago seven antiwar conspiracy trial of the 1960s, has joined the Carter administration as a $36,000-a-year bureaucrat with the Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

The Labor Department agency announced the appointment Friday in a routine news release, describing Froines' expertise in chemistry, industrial hygiene and toxic substances. No mention was made of the trial, at which Froines was acquitted.

Froines, now 38, was a well-known activist in the civil rights and antiwar movements before moving into academia and, more recently, the public health field.

A chemist with a doctorate from Yale University, he came to OSHA from Vermont, where he was the state's occupational health director for the past three years.

"Some people say we in the movement have lost and given up . . . but I haven't changed," Froines said. "I'm still working in areas that have social and political implications."

As the first director of OSHA's Office of Toxic Substances, he will be responsible for developing federal standards to protect workers against toxic substances, such as lead and cotton dust.

"This job represents a continuity of social commitment," Froines said in a telephone interview from Harvard University's School of Public Health, where he was attending a meeting.

"A healthy workplace is the goal, and science the strategy, instead of demonstrations or conventions."

Froines, who sports a neatly trimmed mustache and wears gold-rim glasses, joins several other well-known antiwar or civil rights activists now on the federal payroll.

Chief among them is Sam Brown, the director of ACTION, the government agency that coordinates the government antipoverty programs here and abroad, including the Peace Corps.

Brown headed the 1969 stop-the-war Moratorium.

Of the defendants in the burlesque 1969 Chicago Seven trial, only Froines and Lee Weiner were acquitted of all the charges of conspiracy to incite riot at the 1968 Democratic Convention in Chicago. However, Froines later served two weeks in jail for contempt of court.

Froines helped organize the huge May Day demonstration in Washington in 1971, and campaigned for George McGovern, the 1972 Democratic presidential candidate.

His appointment as director of the Vermont Health Department's Division of Occupational Health in 1974 was delayed temporarily by some hostile public reaction. But before he resigned last August, former Vermont Gov. Thomas P. Salmon, who once opposed Froines' selection, praised him as "an exemplary public servant." In joining OSHA, Froines competed for the job through the Civil Service selection system and was ranked the most qualified.

Froines oversees an OSHA office.

Violent crime victims may get aid

Washington (UPI) — The House Friday passed legislation to provide the first federal money to aid victims of violent crimes.

The bill was scaled down during two days of debate, however, reflecting strong opposition to the increase in federal spending for a program that many members of Congress said should be a state responsibility.

Under the legislation, which passed 192 to 173 and was sent to the Senate, the federal government would reimburse states for 25% of the first $25,000 that they pay to victims of various violent crimes. Few states have such programs.

"Like revenue sharing, it is a growth program," said Rep. Otis Pike, D-N.Y., one of many who expressed skepticism that the costs of the program could be held within bounds.

But Rep. James Mann, D-S.C., chairman of the judiciary subcommittee which wrote the bill, said the legislation not only recognized society's obligation to protect the innocent victim but also would lead to fewer unreported crimes since victims would be eligible for compensation.

Originally the bill would have paid 50% of the first $50,000 of loss, but that was scaled back by amendments offered by Reps. Charles Wiggins, R-Calif., and Lamar Gudger, D-N.C.

The bill would cover payments for the victim's medical bills, loss of wages and other similar expenses.

However, the federal money could not be used for property loss, pain and suffering, costs that would be reimbursed from another source or administrative costs.

The total money authorized by the bill also was trimmed down, from $40 million in fiscal 1978, $50 million in 1979 and $60 million in 1980 to $25 million in 1978, $30 million in 1979 and $35 million in 1980.

Before receiving any of the money, states would have to pass laws allowing judges to order the convicted criminal to compensate the victim. That was added to the bill on an amendment by Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif.

Also added to the bill was an amendment by Rep. Caldwell Butler, R-Va., which would require anyone who contracted to write a book or article with a person convicted of a violent crime to place all the proceeds in an escrow fund for the victim.

Pope tells bishops he won't quit

Vatican City (AP) — Pope Paul VI told his bishops from around the world Friday that he intends to remain as head of the Roman Catholic Church.

There had been speculation he might resign because of age. He was 80 Monday. Addressing the Fifth World Synod of Bishops, the pontiff said that, as long as he lives, "we intend to dedicate our forces for the good of the Church."

The Pope earlier told the 204 prelates that today's world has an "unconscious yearning" for God.

The bishops from 93 countries will spend a month grappling with the problems of religious education — how to teach a generation of children and young people in an increasingly secular society and in a Roman Catholic Church in the midst of great change.

Vatican observers said the bishops would probably discuss other important subjects informally, including the general state of the Church and possible successors to Pope Paul, who turned 80 last Monday.

Forty-eight of the 118 cardinals eligible to vote for the next pope are taking part in the synod.

The pontiff's 18-minute sermon in Latin, delivered in the Sistine Chapel under frescoes by Michelangelo, set the tone for the synod's deliberations.

He said contemporary man seems "hostile, indifferent, and deaf to our words, even though in fact one can often detect in this attitude an unconscious yearning, a real and deeply felt search for God."

The great progress of civilization and science has a twofold effect, the Pope said — the disappearance of manmade religions as unnecessary to explain the world and, at the same time, a greater awareness of the "mysteries of the cosmos" and the ultimate enigma of life without God.

"If such is the case, dearest brothers — as indeed our pastoral experience and the simplest psychological inquiry bears out — our mission can still find a very warm welcome," he said.

Pain flashed across the face of the pontiff, who suffers from the joint disease arthrosis, as he bent to kiss the chapel altar at the beginning of a Mass that formally opened the synod.

But he spoke in a strong voice and said neither he nor the bishops could abandon their "immense" mission. There had been speculation the Pope might step down once he reached 80, the retirement age he has set for cardinals.

The bishops will discuss a working document developed from the suggestions of various national episcopal conferences throughout the world. After a general review and then working-group sessions on the document, the bishops will present their recommendations to the Pope for promulgation.

The recommendations are likely to be of a general nature to avoid imposing a single solution to an educational situation as complex as the countries and cultures the bishops represent, observers said.

Any controversy likely to develop during the debates will probably arise from a conflict between those who stress doctrinal content and those more concerned with the manner of presentation.

A spokesman for the eight U.S. participants in the synod said they were likely to give equal emphasis to the two elements.

Personalities

Correspondents flunk test

Zbigniew Brzezinski, national security adviser, gave White House correspondents a history test Friday and they all flunked.

Brzezinski, a former college professor, was discussing President Carter's forthcoming world travels and asked reporters what American president was the first to travel abroad. No one guessed.

"William Howard Taft in 1909," Brzezinski said triumphantly. "He went to Panama."

Ethiopian leader assassinated

Temesgen Madebo, 40, the head of Ethiopia's trade union organization, was assassinated by "reactionaries" on his way home from work, Radio Addis Ababa said Friday.

Ford refuses to testify

Former President Gerald Ford said one of the reasons he will not testify before the U.S. Senate on the Panama Canal treaties is that he doesn't want to establish precedent.

"I just didn't think it was necessary or advisable," he said in an interview published Friday in the San Diego Union.

Elizabeth Taylor donates eyes

Elizabeth Taylor has formally donated her eyes to the International Eye Foundation.

Miss Taylor's agent confirmed Thursday that Miss Taylor, famous for her violet eyes, made the decision during a mid-September Eye Ball in Washington for which she served as honorary chairperson.

Criticized director cited

Yuri Lyubimov, one of the Soviet Union's most innovative directors, received an award for his staging of a play that just four months ago drew official criticism.

Lyubimov, director of the Taganka Theater, received the Red Banner of Labor award on his 60th birthday Thursday and "for his services in the development of Soviet theatrical art," the official Tass news agency reported.

It cited his work on four plays, including "The Master and Margarita."

Gas price plan tested by vote

Washington (UPI) — A proposal to phase out controls on natural gas prices survived a test vote in a filibuster-weary Senate Friday, but opponents immediately resumed delaying tactics.

Backers of the deregulation plan by Sens. James Pearson, R-Kan., and Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., defeated an attempt to kill the bill by a vote of 50 to 44.

That kept the legislation alive and left the Senate frozen into a double filibuster mounted by opposing sides of the drawn-out natural gas debate.

Asked after the vote whether his compromise forces have a chance to stop those who favor deregulation, Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., said, "I don't think we can."

"The proper form for this is the (House-Senate) conference," Jackson said.

Still apparently unable to strike a compromise, the Senate finally recessed for the night at 7:21 p.m. CDT. However, the filibustering senators relaxed their vigil long enough for several routine or necessary bills to pass.

The three major bills to clear the Senate in short order were an increase in the national debt ceiling which expired at midnight Friday, an extension of the Civil Rights Commission which would have expired at midnight Friday, and a $3.2 billion authorization for the interstate highway program.

The House earlier approved President Carter's proposal of increasing the price of new natural gas to $1.75 per thousand cubic feet and then letting it rise gradually. That bill does not provide for deregulation.

The deregulation plan would put newly produced gas under a ceiling of approximately $2.50 per thousand cubic feet, compared with the current $1.45, and would lift that ceiling in two years on gas from onshore wells. New offshore gas would be freed in five years.

The test vote followed futile, day-long efforts by the Senate leadership to get rid of the ammunition — hundreds of delaying amendments — both sides were using in the two-way filibuster and move the chamber toward a vote on the main legislation.

Eleven times Democratic leader Robert Byrd tried to get a Senate agreement to consider certain serious amendments, and 11 times a senator objected.

Byrd slapped a stack of amendments the size of the Washington phone book down on his desk and gave up the attempt.

The Senate was spinning its wheels just as it had been for several days, droning through one delaying amendment after another so that neither side — pro or anti-deregulation of natural gas — could get its favored bill to the floor.

Nebraska GOP Sen. Carl Curtis voted against tabling the deregulation plan, while Democratic Sen. Edward Zorinsky was paired against the amendment in a strategy with three other senators, although no vote was cast by the four.

U.S.-North Korea meeting proposed

Washington (UPI) — President Carter Friday received a message from North Korea proposing a meeting between U.S. and North Korean officials. He said he would attend such a meeting personally, provided South Korean leaders are included.

The invitation was conveyed by visiting Yugoslav leader Edvard Kardelj, who also told Carter that President Tito has accepted a U.S. invitation to visit Washington in the spring.

"I would like to meet with the North Koreans if the South Koreans can participate," Carter told Kardelj in the presence of reporters during a ceremonial photo-taking session.

Kardelj, a member of Yugoslavia's collective presidential body, had just delivered a letter from Tito on the subject.

The Yugoslav president recently completed a trip to the Soviet Union, China and North Korea. Carter said Tito's letter "will be very helpful."

In July, the United States and North Korea broke a two-decade pattern of hostile confrontations by using quiet diplomacy to settle an incident in which the North Koreans shot down an unarmed U.S. helicopter.

The Kardelj meeting preceded Carter's late-afternoon departure for Camp David, the Maryland mountain retreat, where he was spending the weekend.

Commenting on U.S.-Yugoslav relations, Carter said, "One of the basic foundations of our foreign policy is our friendship with Yugoslavia. We'd like for President Tito to visit us, and we hope to work out a date."

"He has accepted and is planning to come in the spring," Kardelj replied.

After their hour-long meeting, Kardelj told reporters Carter would send a member of his Cabinet to Yugoslavia. White House officials, however, said it was not known which of the 12 Cabinet officers would go.

On the North Korean matter, National Security Adviser

Zbigniew Brzezinski told reporters "we are not seeking a meeting with North Korea."

"If Korean matters are going to be discussed, and that presumably would be the only point of any discussion between the United States and the government of North Korea, then quite clearly the Republic of South Korea ... ought to be present."

"We are not going to be party either to the isolation or the undermining of South Korea."

Carter has taken pains to reassure the Seoul government, and warn the North Koreans, that his plan to withdraw U.S. ground forces from South Korea should not be interpreted as a weakening of American commitment.

Sentence confusing

A sentence in a story in Wednesday's Lincoln Star about Tay-Sachs disease has caused some confusion about the disease. The sentence said the disease "almost always strikes Jewish people"; it should have said the disease almost always strikes only Jewish people and not all Jewish people contract the disease. The disease is described as inherited and incurable.

Striking teachers leave jail

Dedham, Mass. (AP) — More than 60 Franklin teachers walked out of jail triumphantly Friday after winning the seniority issue that kept them on strike for two weeks.

The teachers, some met by cheering colleagues, were released after their union accepted an offer from the Franklin School Committee for a new three-year contract.

Some of the teachers had been in jail for more than a week for defying a state court order to end their strike.

They could have gotten out sooner but refused to purge themselves of contempt citations issued by Judges John M. Greaney and John P. Sullivan by going back to work.

The school system has 286 teachers for 11 schools with about 5,000 pupils.

Don't sell Jimmy short

Washington — You can agree or disagree with President Carter on policy, but some personal things you can't deny. In good times and bad, he faces his critics with more regularity, more precision of fact and language, and more patience and courtesy than any other president of the television age. So it would be a bad idea to sell Jimmy short.

He promised when elected to have two press conferences a month, come what may, and he has stuck to it. His 16th, after the roughest passage of his nine months in the White House, illustrates the point. It may be the best show of the new TV season.

Carter clearly regards these confrontations with the reporters as an opportunity rather than a problem. With all three national commercial television networks reporting the event, he used them to appeal to the American people and the Senate to support his energy program.

He was very careful, in praising the House for backing his energy policy, not to condemn the Senate for cutting it up. He avoided invitations from the press to compare the leadership of the two houses. He stuck to the facts: Already this year, the United States had spent $23 billion on imported energy. The bill for foreign fuel would be $45 billion by the end of the year, and if this importation cost went on at present rates, the cost of foreign fuel between now and then would total $450 billion by 1990.

Carter knew there were strong pressures on the senators and honest differences of opinion about what should be done, but despite the present struggles and filibusters in the Senate, he sounded confident — probably more confident than he felt or the facts would warrant — that the Senate would finally support an energy bill he could support.

He seemed a little vague about the date of Bert Lance's problems, but other than that, he was definite and even bold about intricate questions of the Middle East, the negotiations with the Soviets about arms control, and almost recklessly frank about awkward domestic political and economic problems.

Was it true, he was asked, that the Republicans in Congress seem to support him more than the Democrats? Well, yes, he said sometimes it was, but of course he was a Democrat, etc. What was he going to do about the competition of foreign steel, which was hurting the domestic steel industry? Not all the blame, he replied, should be put on foreign steel companies, or on environmental standards in the U.S. Some of our steel plants were out of date, he implied, and he made no promise to help the steel companies looking for protection against foreign competition.

This was very typical of Jimmy Carter. He is a very gutsy guy. He will meet every press conference he promised, answer every question with more candor than most of his predecessors, invite every senator who has a pain, receive every foreign visitor who comes to town, and even, as we have discovered in the last few days, call up reporters who have, in his view, made a mistake, and give them interviews to set them straight.

It is an appealing and amiable trait but this may really be Jimmy Carter's problem. Like a doctor, he is unfailingly sympathetic to anybody who thinks he's in trouble, not only Bert Lance, but any senator who has a grievance — oddly the people who oppose him rather than the people who support him — and he has set up a schedule of speeches, visitors and travels in the next few weeks that cannot possibly make sense unless he invents the 48-hour day.

He is going to New York next week to address the United Nations. Having campaigned for Henry Howell, the Democratic candidate for governor in Virginia, he is also going to campaign in New York City for the Democratic candidate for mayor, Edward Koch.

Meanwhile, he has announced a trip to four continents and 11 countries in Latin America, Africa, Europe and Asia in eight days at the end of November. So while Washington admires his energy, it also questions his judgment.

He is fighting on a dozen battlefields at the same time — on energy, welfare, taxes, inflation, unemployment and farm policy, among other things at home. And on human rights, arms control, fiscal stability, Middle East compromise and black majority in Africa overseas.

Washington watches all this with admiration but some doubt. How can he get all this together? Is it possible to do so many things at the same time? What are his priorities? And will he ever concentrate his tireless energy on a few questions that will startle the Congress into lucidity and decision?

These are the questions that baffle the Capitol about Carter, even when they admire him. Every time he has a press conference, he wins the respect of his opponents, and even inspires some hope for the future.

In the end, the hope here is that he will get agreement on Panama, even a limited arms agreement with the Russians and an energy program at home, for he is a determined man and has more support with the people than he has with the Congress or the press. But still Washington wonders and hopes about where he is going.

Attack on sex ed film reveals split personality

The recent controversy over a sex education film shown once to girls in the Wayne School District has left us non-plused; we're not sure what the noise is all about.

This is another case in which the central point is lost in a clash of personalities and political aims. The film apparently won't be shown in Nebraska schools again, because of a decision by its owners. But its educational worth has not been determined by any objective standards.

Even Gov. Jim Exon, able to recognize a potentially hot political issue when he sees one, was drawn into the controversy. The governor viewed the film at the request of State Board of Education member Don Lienemann and S. H. Brauer Jr., lobbyist for the Nebraska School Improvement Association, and announced that he thought the film was shocking. And he said the State Board of Education was weak because it would not intervene in the Wayne district where the film was shown.

That Brauer and Lienemann, with Exon's aid, should want to push the state board into a position of controlling the use of teaching aids in the local school districts is all the more startling in light of their reputations as local control champions.

Paul Belz, executive secretary of the Nebraska State Education Association, in a column in "Ed News," pulls out a year-old Brauer quote to illustrate: "Nearly every problem parents and taxpayers are experiencing in the cost of operating and maintaining control over their local, close-to-home schools has been as a direct result of the policies and interference of the State Department of Education," Brauer said.

Yet he now wants the state board to look bad for not interfering in the matter of the sex education film.

Brauer and Lienemann obviously want it both ways: they favor the use of the power of the state when it suits their purposes and its acquiescence when it does not. So much for ideological purity.

Partisan gain, nation's loss

If the Republican National Committee resolves to oppose the Panama Canal treaties, as expected, it will have sawed off the limbs upon which a number of the party's leading national figures perch and it will have contributed nothing constructive in the resolution of a sensitive international problem.

Conservatives sense that the Panama Canal issue is one which they can use to their political advantage and they happen to be right. The national mood at the present time is tilted against the treaties, although not as decidedly as some might dream. It follows that if the present mood can be maintained by disrupting rational debate and keeping the argument on an emotional pitch, the forces opposed to the treaties may with some justification assess their position as conducive to widening their influence in other areas. Nothing succeeds like success.

But what may be good for conservatives politically may not, in this case, be in the best interests of the country. Nor good for conservatives over the long run.

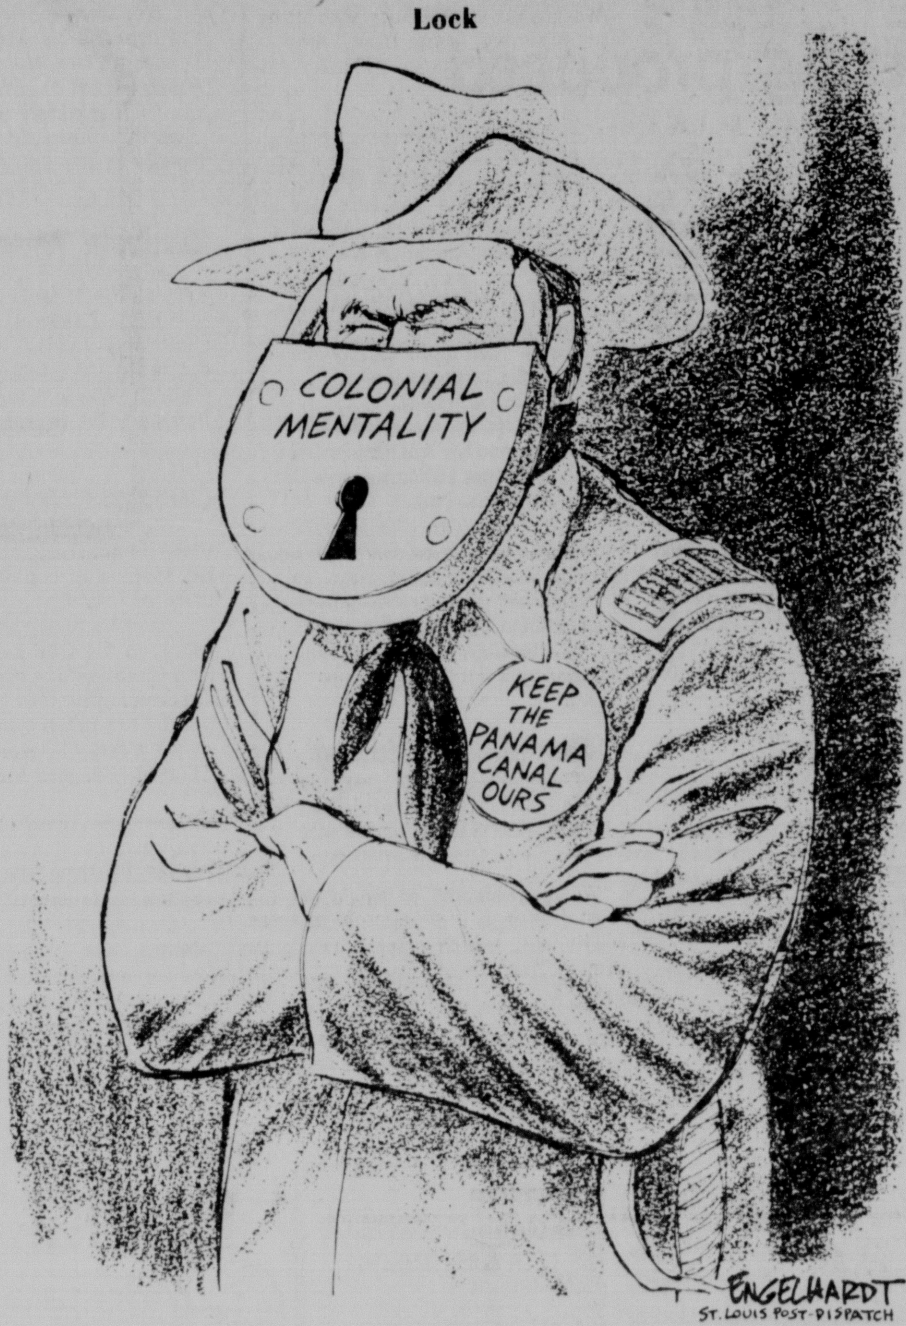

Some conservatives and some

Republicans who don't call themselves conservatives understand the point.

Although he may be somewhat uncomfortable with his position now, Gerald Ford, titular leader of the Republican Party, has not backed down from his support for the treaty. Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker is on the horns of a dilemma as a presidential hopeful who must win nomination by a party whose members are largely opposed to the treaties and as a statesman whose instincts tell him the treaties should be ratified. One wonders if he is strong enough to be right rather than be president. Other conservatives such as Sen. S.I. Hayakawa and William Buckley, conservatives not without influence in the Republican Party who know something of the spirit of the late Sen. Arthur Vandenberg, are somewhat pre-empted by the beating of partisan anti-treaty drums from the right flank.

(It should be said that excessive, irrational pro-treaty noise is as obnoxious as the excesses of the "aginners").

In the long run, the treaty issue is not one of partisan gain or loss, but of national gain or loss.

Pressure groups deserve only a hearing

Washington — If the conservative movement were to have its way these days, we apparently would have government by referendums and opinion polls. That is not what the Founding Fathers, whom the conservatives profess to admire so much, had in mind.

This is the implication, at least, of the strategy the rightists are using — with astonishing success — in dealing with Congress this year. Somewhat oversimplified, that strategy is to overwhelm the politicians with "evidence" that the popular will demands a particular decision on an issue.

The most obvious current example is, of course, the campaign to defeat the Panama Canal treaties, the core of which is a flood of mail to those senators who might appear politically susceptible to pressure. But the same approach has been used, along with other tactics, to put the heat on Congress on such diverse issues as common situs picketing, public financing of congressional elections and abortion. And it will be used on the questions in the months ahead if it is perceived as successful.

The conventional response of the politicians in Congress is predictable. The organized mail, they always say, is often less a reflection of the national will on an issue than a reflection of the skill and financing of the organizers. But the fact is, and they know it, that in a close call, some of their colleagues inevitably are influenced by whoever is making the most noise. Indeed, the recognition of that reality is what has prompted some of the political professionals on the other side of such issues — organized labor, for example — to adopt the same tactics.

But this is the wrong rationale for political independence. We don't elect senators and congressmen, or presidents either, with an injunction that they should take the temperature of their constituencies every few days and vote accordingly. We elect them with the expectation instead that they will exercise their best judgment on an issue, whatever the climate back home. And the political landscape is littered with the bodies of politicians who tried to react to every change in the wind.

The Panama Canal is a classic example of the kind of decision that cannot be rationally made by measuring decibel levels. The treaties are complex, and the issues far more sophisticated than whether or not our national manhood is being tested by some tinhorn dictator, as Ronald Reagan suggests. There are indeed valid arguments that can be made against the treaties, but the findings of the opinion polls are not among them. It smacks of elitism to say most voters don't have the information on which to base an intelligent judgment about the canal, but it is accurate, nonetheless.

On domestic questions, there is still another element in the equation. One of the responsibilities of the federal government is to correct inequity in our society. And by its very nature, any step to redress a grievance of a minority is unlikely to have majority support in an opinion survey. But that doesn't mean such steps should not be taken. On the contrary, that is one of the reason we have a federal government.

None of this should suggest that politicians can ignore their constituents. If, over a period of time, any elected official is consistently wrongheaded, he is going to be sent home to Indianapolis to practice law, heaven forbid. But no office-holder can justify making a particular decision on anything but the merits of the issue. They do it, of course, all the time, but they cannot justify it.

The most pressure these days usually comes from the conservatives, for several reasons. For one thing, they are better organized and financed than the leftists. For another, they have the zeal among their followers that is essential to such campaigns. They are usually lining up against something rather than for it, and it is always easier in these times to enlist critics of the government's plans than optimists with any faith that government actions can solve a problem.

That doesn't mean, however, that the liberals don't use the same techniques when they can. That is how the case against the war in Vietnam was made. And, on a vastly different scale, the leftists relied heavily on their version of "public opinion" in lobbying against the B-1 bomber earlier this year.

But, whether inspired by conservatives or liberals, it is not a valid approach to serious public questions. The pressure groups have a right to be heard, of course. But they have no right to be heeded. All they are entitled to is the politicians' best judgments.

Riddle: 'Brothers and sisters I have none . . .'

Ellen Goodman

At this marital news, all of her computer lights — which had been programmed in another decade — flashed, "Disruption! Disintegration! The Breakdown of Society!"

You see, the woman was still uneasy with the redistribution of husbands and wives. She wanted to be able to tell the marriage without a scorecard. She was uncomfortable with the continual resettlement of children as if they were refugees. They all seemed to have mismatched names and addresses.

But, on the whole, the children accepted it. She overheard snatches of conversations that startled her: "Are your parents still married?" "After I get married and divorced . . ." It seemed that for every one of the children whose family was tangibly, irrevocably "destroyed," there was another whose family had been extended, in steps, or step-parents.

Was this worse? Most of her own generation had lived in tight "forever" structures in some ways unable to cope with change as adults. They were now often terminally inflexible.

Would the kids who were growing up with a sense of flux be more flexible? Or would they be unable to cope with permanence?

The woman didn't know. She had a feeling that every generation of children is brought up to accept the world in which their parents lived. They are emotionally equipped to fight the last war. But perhaps they are equally unprepared for the unknown: their own adulthood.

Thinking about it gave her a headache, especially since she was listening carefully again. The child continued, slowly, patronizingly. She had another friend who lived with her father and her stepmother who has a child by an ex-husband who is married to a woman who . . .

Who probably once believed in permanence.

Guards man corners

By J. L. Schmidt
Star Staff Writer

When a six-year-old boy was hit by a car on his way home from school last week, Lincoln Police Lt. Al Maxey added another name to his list.

Not the name of the driver, or the boy, but the intersection. That now makes 42 potentially hazardous intersections, all of them in front of or near school buildings.

Maxey, as chief school resource officer, compiled the list with the help of the Mayor's School Crossing Protection Committee, the group which has been responsible for crossing warning signs, reduced speed limits and lights at some crossings.

But there's more than lists, and signs, and flashing lights now.

Monday morning, seven adult school crossing guards, under the watchful eye of Maxey and the seven school resource officers under his command, will man the intersections during the one-hour rush before school. They'll repeat that duty after school.

Target intersections for the first day of the year-long experiment are 70th and Fremont, 33rd and Vine, 30th and South, 27th and Holdrege, 25th and O, 70th and Monterey and 37th and Sheridan.

"We've attempted to single out the worst crossings, the real problem areas which have received the most complaints from parents and teachers," Maxey said.

The part-time guards will be rotated among the 42 problem intersections during the year.

Susan Bernt is one of seven crossing guards who Monday will man some of Lincoln's most dangerous intersections.

Their primary responsibility will be educating youngsters to obey lights and to cross only at marked crossings. They will be armed with pad and pencil to write down the license numbers of any vehicles violating the law and, thus, creating the problems, he added.

Offenders will receive a letter from Police Chief George Hansen, explaining the violation, and asking for cooperation in exercising caution in the area. In addition to the letter, the offenders will be contacted by a school resource officer if the problem is a continuing one.

"We hope to compile data telling us where the problems are," Maxey said. "We'll then adjust our guard schedule and the use of the protective devices to meet the problems."

It is hoped the conspicuous presence of the crossing guards will change some potentially dangerous habits of motorists and pedestrians alike. It also will draw attention to the school crossings and the presence of the long arm of the law, he added.

The only authority the guards will have is for the general instruction and direction of school children pertaining to the safe movement of traffic to and from school.

They will not have direction or control of motor vehicle traffic or the admonishment of adults, Maxey said.

The program is a one-year pilot program and not intended to be a continuing operation of the police department. Maxey said he hopes that in a year's time, compliance with school crossing regulations will come within an acceptable limit.

The bidding:

Pass	Pass	5♦	Pass

Opening lead — nine of hearts.

One gets lucky, at times, in unexpected ways. For example, consider this deal where South got to five diamonds doubled on the bidding shown. West led a heart, won by East with the queen, and East returned a trump in order to reduce declarer's possible heart ruffs in dummy.

Because of the bidding, South thought that West had the guarded king of diamonds and, in an effort to assure at least one heart ruff in dummy, he went up with the ace.

The ace caught a big fish, the king, and now South was on Easy Street. He ruffed the six of hearts in dummy, cashed the ace of spades, ruffed a spade and played the queen of diamonds, drawing East's last trump.

Now, not content with scoring only eleven tricks, South proceeded to play four more rounds of trumps, producing this position:

North

♣ A 8

West
♠ K
♣ K 10

East

♣ Q J

South then played his last trump, effectuating a double squeeze. West could not afford to part with the king of spades, so he discarded a club. Declarer now discarded dummy's jack of spades whereupon East, who could not afford to part with the ace of hearts, also discarded a club.

This permitted South to win the last two tricks with the A-8 of clubs, and the result was that he made five diamonds doubled with an overtrick for a score of 950 points. Some people have all the luck!

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I'm a respectable middle-aged woman who never thought I'd be writing a Dear Abby letter, but I am.

While driving home alone from a meeting about 11 p.m. last evening, I developed car trouble. Fortunately, I was in a residential neighborhood, so I rang the doorbell of a home, hoping to get someone to help me.

A man yelled through the locked door, "Who is it?" I told him of my plight, and he said, "Sorry, I don't open my door to strangers." I was shocked. I rang another doorbell. This time an elderly lady pulled her curtain aside to look at me, then she disappeared without even asking me what I wanted.

Then I tried to flag down a motorist. About 30 cars passed me before a young hippie-looking kid in a beat up old van stopped and gave me a ride to a gas station. One man was inside and he signaled he was closed and couldn't help me!

I finally found a pay phone and called AAA, which sent someone out to help me. My question: Are we living in such a sick, selfish, paranoid society in which people care so little for each other that they won't open the door to a stranger? I could have been on my way to a hospital with a dying child for all those people cared. I welcome your comments.

BOILING

DEAR BOILING: In light of the widely publicized police directives cautioning us against opening one's door to strangers, I cannot fault those who refused to let you in. However, they could have made a phone call for you.

DEAR ABBY: I am engaged to marry a dude who can't keep his eyes off other girls. What he does when he isn't with me can't hurt me because I don't see it, but when we're together and he stares at other girls, I'm hurt. He says blondes are his weakness.

I offered to bleach my hair blonde, but he says he likes me the way I am. Do you think he will change after we're married? He says he will, but I don't know whether to believe him. Any suggestions? Sign me,

JEANNIE WITH THE LIGHT BROWN HAIR

DEAR JEANNIE: Don't marry a man hoping he'll "change" for the better after marriage. He may change for the worse — or not at all.

Social circle includes the lonely

By Joanne Farris

DEAR JOANNA FARRIS: My husband and I are both middle-aged, but we have done some long-range thinking, inevitably of the day when one of us will be left alone.

While we are still together we include widows, widowers, and single persons of ages from 40 up in our social affairs. I urge all happily married middle-aged couples to do the same.

You will be amazed at the response. They will be so thrilled and thankful; so much so that most of them will insist on paying for their own meal just for the joy of going out with people.

This practice has enriched our lives tremendously and expanded our horizons. If more married couples did this, there would be fewer lonely widows and widowers. Signed: C.C., Los Angeles.

ANSWER: What a great idea! We all need to feel wanted, and when someone invites us out, it's his or her way of saying, "I want to be with you."

Losing a spouse after many years of marriage is devastating. There is no easy way to adjust to such a loss. But warm and caring friends like you can help.

Your widow friends are fortunate that your husband enjoys their company as much as you do. One older woman wrote to me about her husband's response, which is quite different.

DEAR JOANNE FARRIS: My husband and I moved to a retirement area from up North. I met some lovely widows in our building that I would like to have as friends. So I invited different ones for lunch, one for dinner, etc. They all made it plain to me that they wanted my husband to be there too. They invited us back, emphasizing the same thing.

My husband, however, said, "I don't want to be with just women so much." Since I did not know couples to invite along with the widows, I gradually let the friendships cool. If these women had been satisfied with me alone once in a while and the two of us from time to time we could have been close friends. Signed: A.S., Lakeland, Fla.

ANSWER: I welcome comments from readers regarding these two letters.

The second letter mentions one point that is important for every widow and widower to remember. If you want to be entertained by your married friends, remember to invite them back.

Anyone who accepts invitations from others without reciprocating conveys a message of "I don't enjoy being with you enough to invite you back." And that is a real turn-off message.

I know a widower who gets a lot of invitations. He's good company, laughs a lot, and is a considerate guest. Every few months he gives a small dinner party for several of the couples who have included him in their doings. No wonder he keeps getting invitations!

Send your comments on this to any other subject to Joanne Farris.

"WHY DO THE HEATHEN RAGE?"

Psalms 2:1 and Acts 4:25

Matthew 9:36-38 reads: "WHEN HE (JESUS) SAW THE MULTITUDES, HE WAS MOVED WITH COMPASSION ON THEM, BECAUSE THEY FAINTED, AND WERE SCATTERED ABROAD AS SHEEP HAVING NO SHEPHERD. THEN SAID HE UNTO HIS DISCIPLES, THE HARVEST TRULY IS PLENTIFUL BUT THE LABORERS ARE FEW: PRAY YE THEREFORE THE LORD OF THE HARVEST THAT HE WILL SEND FORTH LABORERS INTO HIS HARVEST."

"THE HARVEST IS PLENTIFUL BUT THE LABORERS ARE FEW!" When Jesus said that "the woods were full" of Levites, Priests, Scribes, Doctors, Teachers, Divines, etc. But most of these divines had become DRY VINES, and many of the doctors were DOCTORS OF DARKNESS. Read what HE told them about their condition in the 23rd of Matthew — they were so outraged that they managed to get Him crucified! The 23rd chapter of Jeremiah is somewhat like the 23rd of Matthew, where about 600 years before God had warned the spiritual leaders of their corrupt condition. Also, about 700 years before He had warned them by His servant Isaiah, chapter 56:10, 11: "HIS WATCHMEN ARE BLIND: THEY ARE ALL IGNORANT, THEY ARE ALL DUMB DOGS, THEY CANNOT BARK; SLEEPING, LYING DOWN, LOVING TO SLUMBER. YEA, THEY ARE GREEDY DOGS WHICH CAN NEVER HAVE ENOUGH, AND THEY ARE SHEPHERDS THAT CANNOT UNDERSTAND: THEY ALL LOOK THEIR OWN WAY, EVERY ONE FOR HIS GAIN, FROM HIS QUARTER." — Note in this passage D. D. means "dumb dogs that cannot bark!"

We have heard of those who can so imitate the "caw" of the crow that they deceive the crows, cause them to believe a lie and think maybe their Bishop, Cardinal or Pope is calling them to a great Convocation for Revival! So they flock to the place of the call and are slaughtered wholesale by the guns of probably "sons of guns" if they are doing it just for sport.

However, to try to philosophize on such a tragedy, maybe the citizens of some crow city have become overmuch wicked in destroying the corn crops, and for that reason God permitted them to "believe a lie and be damned!" Did you know the Bible says God will send such a judgment upon men who reject His Word of Truth and "have pleasure in unrighteousness?" — 2nd Thessalonians 2:11, 12. "Not one sparrow falls to the ground without your Heavenly Father," said Jesus. Surely this applied to the crow, and no doubt God causes the good crows to escape, or to be absent and fall to attend the tragic convocation, or revival!

God asks us this question: "Who makes thee to differ from another, and what hast thou that thou did not receive?" If we are true Christians hating evil, apostasy, and hypocrisy, we should remember that it is the mercy of God that has delivered us and made us to differ from the ungodly, and that His blessing has been received from God "BY HIS GRACE THROUGH FAITH." This should not make us proud, rather humble, and stir us up to work, testify, and pray that the Dry Vines might receive Life and bear much fruit; that the Doctors of Darkness might become Doctors of "The Light of The World"; Blind Watchmen might have sight restored, cease to be ignorant, dogs not dumb but capable of barking and warning of the "thief climbing up some other way and not entering by the Door, Christ Jesus; and quit sleeping, lying down, loving to slumber!"

True Protestantism believes in the "Priesthood of the Believer." If you consider yourself a "Priestly Believer," in view of the wickedness, evil, shame, crime, etc., on every hand, can you face the fact of these conditions without shame and sorrow when God says: "BUT IF THEY HAD STOOD IN MY COUNSEL, AND HAD CAUSED MY PEOPLE TO HEAR MY WORDS, THEN THEY SHOULD HAVE TURNED THEM FROM THEIR EVIL WAY, AND FROM THE EVIL OF THEIR DOINGS!" Jer. 23:22.

Work begins on SCC Lincoln campus site

By Nancy Hicks
Star Staff Writer

The surveyor's stakes are being pounded down. Work has begun on the Southeast Community College (SCC) Lincoln campus building. Delayed almost one year by a citizens' law suit, the almost 16 million technical school should be ready for the estimated 1,600 vocational students by June, 1979, SCC administrators announced Friday morning.

Surrounded by color drawings of the one-story brick building, SCC top officials, who have planned, studied, worked and sweated over the location and design of the two-year school's new building for almost two years, listed the new facility's benefits.

The 185,000-square foot building is "barrier free" for handicapped students, it has energy saving techniques such as using lights as a supplemental heat source. The 86th and O St. location is close to bus services.

The mechanical systems have been designed to adapt to solar energy systems, and the new building will combine three current technical libraries, according to David Buettner, Lincoln campus director.

"We're trying to set an example for the state and nation on what a technical community college library is supposed to be like," he said.

"There are larger spaces for some programs and more appropriate space for all programs," said Buettner.

Buettner also described the simple, economical construction for the vocational instruction building, which will cost "slightly more than $25 per square foot."

The location of the building has been surrounded by controversy since the SCC board decided that Lincoln's Whittier Junior High School could not be remodeled easily or inexpensively into a vocational school. The board decided to build at Lincoln's eastern edge, next to the Steven's Creek watershed.

Some citizens have vocally objected to the location, which they fear will lead to more development in the watershed area.

A law suit in Lancaster County District Court successfully challenged the bidding system used to select the building contractor and architect delaying construction through the summer.

The lawsuit and the delay added to the price of the building. There were $117,000 in construction cost increases, $20,000 to $25,000 in direct costs associated with the court action, an extra year's rent, and more money for higher interest rates, according to SCC attorney Doug Curry.

Currently the Lincoln campus, which served 15,900 adults last year, is spread across nine community facilities at an annual rental cost of more than $284,000.

Surveying work at the 117-acre site began Thursday after an agreement was reached between the board and the SCC Educational Foundation, which is building the facility, said Robert Eicher, SCC president.

The SCC board will purchase the building on contract over the next three years, using money from a one-mill tax levy allowed by state law for building purposes, he said.

An annexation ordinance, putting only the building site within the city limits, has been introduced in City Council by Joe Hampton, Curry said.

Annexation will allow the school to hook into city water and sewage facilities.

The campus will use about 40 acres of the 117-acre tract, and the building itself will sit on a hill about 880 feet from 84th St., said Buettner.

Some of the remaining land may eventually be made into park and recreation areas for use by both students and Lincoln residents, Eicher explained.

Though the new building will consolidate most SCC programs, the school will continue to offer adult education programs, at Lincoln public schools and some health-related training may remain at hospital locations and at the Lincoln Medical Education Foundation Center, formerly the Bethesda Hospital.

Battered spouses relate life in overwhelming fear

Scottsbluff (AP) — "I am a battered wife," the woman said in a composed voice as she testified at a hearing on spouse abuse before the Unicameral's Judiciary Committee.

Asking that she not be identified, the woman, one of several witnesses testifying in favor of emergency aid for battered spouses who attempt to escape the situation, described the problems and fears of abused spouses.

"The fear is overwhelming," she said. She said fear is one reason many women victims don't follow through with charges against their husbands.

"They are in a constant state of fear and have heard threats for so long they just don't know what to do. He says 'If you leave me I'll find you and kill you' and you begin to believe he will," she said.

The woman then described for Scottsbluff Sen. William Nichol and others at the hearing what she went through when she finally decided she could take no more of the violence.

"Once you get the courage to leave, you're afraid he'll come after you... What you need is a safe place to go and someone to give you immediate emotional support. You need an emergency loan fund because you probably don't have any money to help you get on your feet. And you need some kind of hot line to call, where a trained person can give you some comfort," the woman said.

An abused woman needs someone to help her through the court procedure if she decides to press charges, the woman said.

Another abused wife, who said she was seeking a divorce after almost 40 years of marriage, called for quick action by law enforcement officers and the courts in dealing with spouse abuse.

"You have a restraining order and he comes back and beats you. You file a contempt citation and 30 days later you get a hearing. It's too late by then," the second woman said.

Scotts Bluff County Judge James Macken proposed a family court to deal with all domestic relations including abuse and divorce.

"It would be a broadening of the juvenile court concept and the cost could be minimal," he said.

The court also would protect confidentiality of the victims and their abusers as does the juvenile court. He said public notoriety is one deterrent to the reporting of cases of spouse abuse.

Suspect benefited from bargaining

Lexington (AP) — A district judge says murder suspect Dennis L. Sell, 32, of Lexington is the beneficiary of a plea bargain earlier this month.

Dawson County District Judge Keith Windrum said Dawson County Atty. Willard Weinhold moved Sept. 20 to dismiss a first-degree sexual assault charge against Sell in connection with the alleged rape June 17 of a woman at Johnson Lake.

The same day, Sell pleaded guilty to breaking and entering with intent to commit rape in connection with the same case.

Sell was charged Wednesday with first-degree murder in the death of Ruth Eby, 32, of Lexington.

Windrum said the first-degree assault charge wouldn't necessarily have led to a stiffer sentence against Sell had he been tried for the Johnson Lake case and found guilty.

The judge said only if the assault had led to physical injury would a first-degree conviction produce a longer sentence.

Sell remained free after Sept. 20 after posting 10% of a $10,000 bond imposed in the Johnson Lake charges.

Committee maps out timetable for gasohol study

By Lyn Zerschling
Star Staff Writer

By Halloween, the State Gasohol Committee hopes to have figured out what it wants included in its $60,000 marketing study of gasohol.

By Christmas, the committee hopes to have a consulting firm selected and by New Year's, the study should be underway. And, before summer officially arrives, the committee hopes to be able to have the magic answer to that elusive question — does gasohol have a future in Nebraska?

That timetable of events was revealed by Gasohol Administrator Charles Fricke Friday, who noted that the University of Nebraska's Bureau of Business Research will help write up the rough draft of study specifications.

The seven members of the Gasohol Committee met Friday to begin the ground work on the study by finding out what the public thinks should be studied. Not too many attended the hearing, but those that did suggested the only way to make gasohol competitive with gasoline in price is through subsidies.

State Sen. George "Bill" Burrows of Adams pointed out the oil industry receives a subsidy allowance as oil reserves are depleted. In order for gasohol to become competitive with gasoline, Burrows said farmers also are entitled to subsidies for their crops.

Increased use of gasohol would reduce America's dependence on foreign oil imports and help make Americans more dependent upon themselves for energy, he claimed.

Burrows said he thinks his fellow senators would pass legislation granting subsidies to Nebraska farmers if "it can be shown there is some benefit to them."

Representatives of several consulting firms also appeared to either ask for clarification or to make suggestions on the possible direction of the marketing study.

Stuart Russell, an environmental engineer for the Omaha firm of Henningson, Durham & Richardson, said the study should uncover what price

Nebraskans would be willing to pay for a gallon of gasohol. Russell said the study also should report on how many plants would have to be built and the type of transportation network needed to ship the grain to the plants.

Information on the gasohol market would have to be combined with technical data compiled on gasohol.

"To date, this has not been tied together," he told the committee. Russell said his firm would join with Selection Research Inc., of Lincoln in conducting the study as a joint project.

Bill Jackson, an analyst for Selection Research, said one of the crucial details for the consulting firm to consider is all the information compiled to date on production and marketing of the fuel blend.

"There should be no assumptions made," he said.

E.A. Kirchner, an engineer for Arthur G. McKee & Co. in Chicago, said, "The project seems to be ill-defined."

Before his firm would place a bid on doing the job, he said, he would need more information on what is expected.

"It's obvious that the (gasohol) project is marginally feasible," Kirchner said.

"If it was a bonanza, you wouldn't need to be here because private industry would be swarming all over Nebraska."

Farmers' strike parade set for Sunday

Cambridge (UPI) — A group of disgruntled Nebraska farmers will stage a "farmers strike parade" Sunday along U.S. 283 and U.S. 30 in south central Nebraska to publicize the financial plight of farmers.

"The purpose is to let other farmers know how we feel and to educate the public," said Ken Hilton, a southwest Nebraska farmer and spokesman for the parade organizers.

The theme of the parade and the rally that follows is "no profit, no food," he said. "Farmers have been quoting statistics for 20 years and that hasn't soaked through."

"It seems strange to me that while we (farmers) keep producing food, we keep losing money," he said.

The parade of cars and trucks is to start at Arapahoe at 1:30 p.m. and travels at 40 mph along U.S. 283 to Elwood. The group, which will be joined by farmers driving tractors, plans to leave Elwood at 2:30 p.m. and travel at tractor speed to the Dawson County fairgrounds at Lexington, arriving about 4 p.m. for a rally.

A group of farmers from the Cozad and Gothenburg area plans to travel along U.S. 30 to the rally at the fairgrounds.

Hilton said two Springfield, Colo., area farmers, Don Sells and Jim Patterson, who organized a strike parade in eastern Colorado, are scheduled to speak at the rally, along with two or three Nebraska farmers and their wives.

Hilton, 36, who produces wheat, corn and cattle, said he "can't make an honest estimation" of the number of persons who will participate in the parade and rally. "If it's a good day, it's going to be a good turnout," he said.

The two Colorado farmers are members of American Agriculture, a recently formed group that has been planning a farmers strike on Dec. 14. A group of Nebraska farmers, calling themselves Farmers Strike, will cooperate with American Agriculture in the December strike.

Ag Committee hearings slated on shortage of grain storage

United Press International

Sen. Loran Schmit of Bellwood said Friday his Agriculture and Environment Committee will meet at 2 p.m. next Friday to take testimony on reports farmers are being pressured to sell their grain because of a lack of storage facilities.

The committee will attempt to determine whether this is a localized, statewide or Midwest problem, Schmit said.

The $2 per bushel loan rate offered by the federal government and which farmers had hoped would strengthen the market will be of no value if 10-30% of the 1978 crop is forced onto the market, the Bellwood lawmaker said.

"We are especially interested in determining if the terminal elevators are refusing to cooperate with local elevator companies during this critical period," Schmit said.

He added he does not accept the predictions that the 1978 crop will be as large as the U.S. Department of Agriculture predicts because bad harvesting weather is "reducing the crop every day (and) the same conditions are reducing the yields of crops overseas."

Schmit added he has "a strong hunch that every possible method will be used to gather the grain out of the farmers' hands and into marketing channels to hold down the prices as long as possible."

He said a bushel of grain requires an equal amount for storage whether it is owned by the farmer or by the terminal elevator, "but if a terminal elevator owns it, it is much easier to be manipulated to hold down the price of all grain."

Industry group elects president

The plant manager of American Stores Packing Co. has been elected 1977-78 president of Associated Industries of Lincoln.

George J. David succeeds Dale E. LeBaron, president of Lincoln Plating Co., who becomes board chairman.

Other new Associated Industries officers are J. Kent Tupper, vice president; Dr. Walter F. Charnicki, secretary, and John M. Spray, treasurer. Elected to three-year terms on the board were Larry L. Snyder, Leo J. Beck and Carl Broders.

Psychiatrists' absence delays Williams' competency hearing

By J. L. Schmidt
Star Staff Writer

A scheduled mental competency hearing for accused murderer Robert E. Williams was delayed until Oct. 14 by Lancaster County District Judge William Hastings Friday.

Hastings granted a continuance in the matter after learning that neither of the two psychiatrists who were earlier ordered to examine Williams were present for the hearing. Lincoln psychiatrist Dr. John Baldwin and Omaha psychiatrist Dr. Whitney J. Kelley have both completed their examinations of the 40-year-old Lincolnite who faces charges stemming from an Aug. 11 double murder and sexual assault in Lincoln.

County Attorney Ron Lahners told Hastings that Dr. Baldwin is out of town until Oct. 11, but Hastings noted that

Assault charge filed against Lincoln woman

A 24-year-old Lincoln woman, charged with assault and battery in Lancaster County Court, was placed on one-year probation in connection with the charge.

County Judge Robert Camp ordered the probation Wednesday following a presentence investigation in the matter. Miss Georgia Ann North pleaded guilty to the charge after it was reduced, during plea bargaining, from shooting with intent to kill, wound, or maim.

She allegedly shot at Norbert J. Wolf during an argument in a house at 5352 Meredith in early August. Wolf was struck in the nose and was treated and released from a local hospital following the shooting.

Arraignment is scheduled for Lincolnite

A 25-year-old Lincoln man was bound over to Lancaster County District Court for arraignment on charges of first-degree sexual assault and indecent exposure involving two six-year-olds in separate incidents in July.

County Judge Robert Camp ordered Ronald Challen, of 3100 T. St., to appear for arraignment in the higher court Oct. 11. Bond was continued at $10,000 and Challen was returned to the city jail.

he has received a letter concerning Baldwin's findings.

Chief Deputy Public Defender Richard Goos told Hastings that Kelley's report is finished, and a letter concerning same is expected in the very near future. Both Goos and Deputy Public Defender Tom Hagel argued that the doctors should be present for the hearing for cross examination purposes.

The delay in the hearing also will delay a scheduled Oct. 6 preliminary hearing on two charges of first degree murder filed against Williams in county court in connection with the alleged shooting deaths of Catherine Brooks and Patricia McGarry, in the latter's apartment Aug. 11.

Also in doubt is an Oct. 14 preliminary, also in county court, on charges of first-degree sexual assault in an Aug. 11 incident which allegedly happened after the shootings. A Nov. 10 preliminary hearing is scheduled in county court on charges stemming from the alleged kidnapping and assault of Williams's ex-wife, earlier in August.

Hagel and Goos were unsuccessful in getting Hastings to discuss a motion filed late Thursday to exclude and sequester media from the competency hearing.

The motion said, in part, "there is a reasonable probability that the presence of the media at said hearing, and their subsequent reporting of said proceedings, would create an imminent threat to defendant's right to fair trial."

Hastings said he couldn't rule on the motion Friday, because "I don't know what there is to keep from them (the media) at this time."

BELLS AROUND THE WORLD

The Indians could send a rallying call many, many miles by drums. Each drummer, stationed on a lonely ridge, would listen for the sound of distant drums, and relay the message to others waiting across the valley. Overnight a dozen tribes could be rallied to a common cause.

We don't need such crude methods of communication today. Men with a common purpose can join forces around the world at a pre-arranged time.

World Wide Communion Sunday is such an expression of unity. In every Christian land the church bells will summon men and women to the Lord's Supper on this Sunday.

And the universality of this great religious event will not depend on bells relaying the message from town to town. It will depend on folks like yourself coming to their Church to receive this Holy Sacrament.

Red-lining practices condemn inner cities

By Don Walton
Star Staff Writer

Red-lining loan policies by Lincoln banks condemn many of the city's older neighborhoods to a future of stagnation and deterioration, a legislative subcommittee was told Friday.

"We have areas which are in good condition which cannot receive the loans needed to maintain that condition," Lincoln Alliance volunteer Jack Siegman said.

In effect, through red-lining policies, lending institutions "decide what areas will deteriorate," he said.

Banks and savings and loan institutions determine which neighborhoods appear to be "going downhill" and then turn that judgement into "a self-fulfilling prophecy" by denying them the funds to maintain or improve their housing units. Michael Steinman declared.

Savings and loan institutions, in particular, should be required to disclose the amount of deposits from citizens in each census tract compared to the amount of loans provided to citizens within each tract, David Sallee suggested.

Then, citizens could determine whether they should continue to invest in an institution whose policies may be lowering the value of their property by refusing to provide home mortgage or home improvement loans in their neighborhood, he said.

All three spokesmen for the Lincoln Alliance presented their case to members of a subcommittee of the Unicameral's Banking, Commerce and Insurance Committee.

Their testimony centered on bank loan policies in Lincoln, but they said the same practices are followed by savings and loan institutions in the city.

Banks received the most attention in their survey since city government could apply "more leverage" against those institutions in which it places deposits of tax funds, they said.

Red-lining, in which lending institutions cross out certain areas of a city for home mortgage or home improvement loans, clearly exists in Lincoln, the subcommittee was told.

Most central city areas are blacklisted, Siegman said, even when applicants are good credit risks.

In answer to questions by Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh, Siegman suggested that the Legislature look into the possibility of establishing a state bank for such home improvement and home mortgage loans.

DeCamp assured the witnesses that the full committee, of which he is chairman, will attempt to acquire full disclosure on loan policies from banks, savings and loan institutions and the Farmers Home Administration.

Bryan Jones of Bladen said his small community in south-central Nebraska has suffered from red-line policies by both the FHA and a major savings and loan institution in Hastings.

Jones suggested legislation to place "a discriminatory tax" on savings and loan institutions which follow such practices.

Projects win $1.4 million funding

Omaha (AP) — Federal agencies have approved $1.4 million in loans and grants for a variety of projects across Nebraska, members of the state's congressional delegation reported Thursday.

The projects include:
— A $384,000 grant to the Nebraska Energy Office from the Federal Energy Administration for weathering low-income housing.

— A $171,720 grant from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) to Hastings for construction of 54 housing units for the elderly.

— A $43,000 grant from HUD to Dakota County for housing rehabilitation and code enforcement.

— Grants totaling $10,000 for the Nebraska Department of Education and the Omaha School District 66 from the U.S. Office of Education to promote arts in the schools.

— An Environmental Protection Agency grant of $258,750 to Greenwood for waste treatment plant construction.

— A $202,000 loan to the Axtell Housing Authority from the Farmers Home Administration for construction of an eight-apartment housing unit for the elderly.

— A $38,700 contract awarded by the Bureau of Indian Affairs to the Nebraska Intertribal Development Council of Winnebago for an Omaha - Winnebago - Santee Sioux water inventory.

— A $10,000 grant from the Community Services Administration to the Mid-Nebraska Community Action Program of Kearney for emergency flood disaster aid.

— A $324,000 loan from HUD to the Tabitha Home Corporation of Lincoln to build 100 units of housing for the elderly.

Senators told security agents should use weapons sparingly

Associated Press

Government and Military Affairs Committee members were told Friday that weapons should be used by private security personnel sparingly or not at all.

Gregory L. Fraser, representing the J. C. security and Detective Agency in Lincoln, said weapons should be used by private security personnel only when someone's life is endangered by a criminal.

"If there's any problem," Fraser said of his own personnel, "we want them to call the local police department."

Fraser said his agency screens applicants to determine who should be allowed to carry a weapon and who shouldn't.

Fraser told the Unicameral committee, which is completing two days of hearings on possible regulation of security guards, that he formerly was with the State Patrol.

Emil P. Christensen, former Stanton County sheriff and a private investigator from Pilger, defended the right to carry weapons but was opposed to their use.

He said in all his years of police and investigative work, he never used his weapon.

Omaha Sen. Ernest

Chambers, who spearheads the interim study on security operations and has promised legislation in 1978, asked Christensen whether security guards should use guns to stop crimes at shopping centers or stores.

"There wouldn't be any percentage in shooting several people to stop one man," Christensen replied.

"I sure wish you were chief of police in Omaha," Chambers said.

Christensen said he believed security guards and investigators were different and should be treated so in any regulatory legislation.

Zero-base budgeting concept examined for merits and faults

United Press International

Members of the Legislature's Appropriations Committee agreed Friday they did not want to drop further consideration of zero-base budgeting for state agencies.

But they also agreed that if the state adopts the concept it should not be implemented across the board at the same time but rather in stages or on a selective basis.

W. C. Mullan of the legislative fiscal staff defined zero-base budgeting as a system by which each organizational program, whether it is new or old, must be justified in its entirety each time a new budget is formulated.

Such a procedure, he said, requires each manager to justify his entire budget in detail "and shifts the burden of proof to each manager to justify why he should spend any money."

It needs strong commitment at the top level of management in order to be effective, he said.

Advantages of the system, Mullan said, include the fact that it forces the setting of priorities, combines planning, budgeting and operational decision-making, emphasizes evaluation of existing and new programs, facilitates budget reductions or increases as cash flow fluctuates and increases participation by members of lower management.

Disadvantages, he said, are that the system is time consuming, requires a large analytical staff and the collection of much data. It also increases paperwork significantly and may require longer preparation time, he said.

Sen. Larry Stoney of Omaha sponsored the resolution calling on the committee to review the strengths and weaknesses of zero-base budgeting and follow up with a recommendation to the Unicameral.

The only way it can work is through cooperation between the executive and legislative branches, he said.

He suggested the committee propose continuation of the current budgeting process but that it also recommend ways it could be refined. Another Stoney suggestion was that zero-base budgeting or zero-base review be utilized periodically and selectively.

Sen. Ron Cope of Kearney said he wants more information on how much a change would cost so a determination of the cost-benefit ratio could be made.

There is no point in adopting the system "if you have a mountain of costs and a mole hill of benefits," he said.

Mullan said 12 states have adopted zero-base budgeting. Seven of them apply it to all agencies and the others use it selectively or are implementing it on a gradual basis, he said.

Mullan said for the past 10 years Nebraska has had some form of program budgeting with various modifications tried periodically and with increased emphasis being given to legislative intent and oversight.

Many aspects of zero-base budgeting are included in the instructions and forms issued by the state budget officer, he noted.

Two budget bills held over from the 1977 session are:

—LB413, providing for zero-base budgeting.

—LB526, providing that the governor, except during the first year in office, shall present his budget recommendations to the Legislature on or before Jan. 15. During his first year in office, the governor would be given until Feb. 1.

New policy negates suit

A woman who challenged the Lincoln Electric System (LES) policy on disconnecting electrical service was told Friday she isn't entitled to relief in the federal courts.

U.S. District Judge Warren K. Urbom said LES has changed its disconnection policy since Mrs. Gilda Street filed her class action lawsuit, and the new policy provides customers with the constitutional safeguards sought by Mrs. Street.

She filed the suit a year ago. She said she paid a $41.54 electric bill, but LES said she didn't and threatened to shut off her electrical service.

The lawsuit contended LES disconnection policy was unconstitutional because it didn't provide adequate notice to customers that service may be shut off and didn't offer the opportunity of a hearing.

In May, 1977, the LES Administrative Board changed the policy to provide more notice to customers that may be shut off, as well as an opportunity for a hearing to dispute the disconnection.

Support for gasohol sought

Democratic National Committeewoman Frances Ohmstede will try to enlist the support of her party's national governing body for a gasohol program.

Mrs. Ohmstede, a Guide Rock farm wife, has submitted a resolution to the national committee urging President Carter to "launch a federal starch conversion program if the same fashion President Kennedy launched the space program."

The resolution says such a program should include the immediate construction of prototype grain alcohol conversion plants by the federal government.

It will be submitted to the committee at its Oct. 7 meeting in Washington.

The resolution also calls for a congressional mandate that "grain alcohol be added to gasoline used on the highways in whatever amount (up to 20%) this country's grain, sugar and starch producers can produce above the amount needed for food."

Woman, 80, hurt in mishap

An 80-year-old Wilbur resident was hospitalized in good condition Friday with injuries suffered in a two-car collision at Nebraska Hwy. and Arapahoe St.

Alvina A. Renken was at Lincoln General Hospital, recovering from a concussion and scrapes to both knees, police said.

She was a passenger in a car driven by Jerome F. Florian, 42, also of Wilbur, police said. Florian's car struck the rear of another car waiting to turn left off of Nebraska Hwy., police said.

Low pressure center brings wet weather

Cool, wet weather prevailed throughout most of Nebraska Friday.

A low pressure center located over western Kansas combined with a stationary front extending from northern Iowa into northeastern Nebraska through the center of the state caused the wet, unsettled conditions, the National Weather Service said.

A severe thunderstorm watch was in effect for southwest Nebraska Friday night.

During the afternoon, a funnel cloud was sighted 20 miles south of Scottsbluff, triggering the issuance of a tornado warning for the western Panhandle counties. However, there were no reports that the funnel had touched down.

David City's .72 of an inch of rainfall topped the state's Friday reports, followed by .67 at Chadron, .61 at Valentine, .32 at North Platte, .26 at Norfolk, .13 at Omaha, .10 at Scottsbluff, .07 at Alliance, .05 at Lincoln and .03 at Grant Island.

Imperial was the warmest spot in the state Friday with 75 degrees. Alliance, Chadron and Scottsbluff shared the lowest reading of 50 degrees. Lincoln's high was 66 following an overnight low of 61.

Auto rise expected

Detroit (AP) — General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co. planned to make liberal use of overtime this week as U.S. auto production was expected to top the 200,000 mark despite a cutback at American Motors Corp.

Gain best since August

New York (AP) — The stock market ran up its biggest gain in more than a month Friday, inspired by news of declines in both the money supply and farm prices.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed 7.02 to 847.11 for its best daily showing since it picked up 8.67 on Aug. 29.

That gave the average a net advance for the week of 7.97 points.

Gainers outdistanced losers by more than a 5-2 margin on the New York Stock Exchange, and the exchange's composite index rose .37 to 52.81.

Late Thursday the Federal Reserve reported a $1.1 billion decline in the basic measure of the money supply.

Analysts said the news sparked some hopes that the Fed might not feel the need to tighten credit any further in the near future.

The data was also taken as a tentative sign that the central bank might be making some progress in its effort to rein in inflationary pressures by curbing monetary growth.

There was a favorable signal as well for the short-term inflation outlook. The government reported late in the session that farm prices dropped 1 per cent from mid-August to mid-September for their fourth monthly decline in a row.

Brokers said the market also got some residual benefit from Thursday's morning's news that the index of leading economic indicators turned upward in August with a 0.8 per cent rise.

That improvement in the business outlook prompted particular strength in the basic-industry stocks.

Alcoa, for example, was up 2 1/4 to 45 as of the 4 p.m. close of the NYSE. Du Pont rose 1/2 to 109 1/2; U.S. Steel gained 1/2 to 28 1/2, and International Paper added 1/2 to 44 1/2.

All four of those issues are components of the Dow.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrials gained .73 to 106.22, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was up .68 at 96.53.

Savin Business Machines fell 4% to 36 1/4 after a drop of more than 6 points Thursday. The company attributed the selling Thursday largely to reports that its Japanese supplier of plain paper copiers might be planning to compete in the U.S. market.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 4 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 4, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

'Ho' foe Indiana isn't being taken lightly by Osborne

By Dave Sittler
Staff Sports Writer

The program says Nebraska vs. Indiana. Judging from the prevailing attitude, it might as well read Nebraska vs. Ho.

Yep. The way most Cornhusker football patrons figure it, today's 1:30 p.m. contest against the Hoosiers at Memorial Stadium and next week's tilt with Kansas State are the "Ho-Hum" affairs on the 1977 Nebraska schedule.

So, why not label Indiana "Ho" and Kansas State "Hum?"

Trouble is, there's a catch to all this name calling.

Indiana fans, who fancy calling their team the Big Red, too, have things figured out a shade differently.

They think their Hoosiers have a great chance of turning that "Ho" into one long series of ho, ho, ho's, and they will be the ones having the last laugh by the end of today's game.

And there's Nebraska coach Tom Osborne.

Osborne, who is smart enough not to call an opponent anything but great before kickoff, has chided Nebraska players and fans this week for their apparent lackadaisical attitudes.

"It seems that whatever Jimmy the Greek says, they expect," Osborne said. "If he said we should win by 23 points, that's the way it had better be."

Jimmy The Greek, who likes to call himself the King of the Oddsmakers, has forecast just that — a 23-point Cornhusker victory.

"Oh, I suppose we should be favored to win," Osborne said. "But things often don't work out the way they are supposed to."

Osborne's counterpart, Indiana coach Lee Corso, hasn't written off his team's chances of victory.

"Obviously, when you play a team like Nebraska, in their place, you have your hands full," Corso said. "But it's not impossible. If we play close to a perfect game and they don't play up to their capacity, then we have a chance to win it."

Nebraska fans need only think back three weeks to the Washington State game to know Corso isn't just blowing smoke.

A heavy underdog, Washington State played a perfect game against a mistake-prone Nebraska outfit and stunned the Huskers, 19-10.

"We were a heavy underdog once before this season against LSU," Corso reminds. "So it can be done."

The LSU game has been the highlight for Indiana this season. The Hoosiers stunned the proud Bayou Bengals, 24-21.

But an opening season 30-12 loss to Wisconsin and last week's last-second 21-20 defeat to Miami (Ohio), has left Corso to expect next from the Hoosiers.

Indiana sports information director Tom Miller has said the Hoosiers apparently are a yo-yo type club: down one week and up the next. "And this is our week to be up," Miller said.

But odds against an Indiana victory are increased by the fact the Hoosiers are an injury-riddled football team.

The medical problems started in preseason with the loss of nifty running back Mike Harkrader and they have snowballed. At last count, Indiana had lost 13 players who either had started a game or were expected to be starters.

"I can't remember an injury situation comparable to this since I've been at Indiana," said Miller, who is in his 31st year as the Hoosiers' sports information director.

Reflecting on the injuries, Corso said, "I'm disappointed in that we never can field the same team two games in a row. But things can happen. We can find someone who turns things around, or someone will find himself."

Corso came up with a real find in junior Darriek Burnett to replace Harkrader at tailback.

The 5-11, 190-pound Burnett ripped Miami's defense last week for a staggering 209 yards rushing, including an 89-yard run.

"Burnett appears to be as good as any of our I-backs," Osborne has said. "And I'd like to think we have some pretty good backs."

Scott Arnett, a strapping 6-3, 200-pound junior, keys the Hoosier offense from his quarterback post. Arnett was not a starter a year ago when Nebraska whipped the Hoosiers 45-13. But he came on in the seventh game of the season and led Indiana to a third place tie in the Big Ten Conference.

"You have to have some talent to finish third in the Big Ten," Osborne said. "And I'm sure Indiana is a better football team than we played a year ago."

Osborne has injury problems of his own to worry about.

Flashy junior I-back Rick Berns appears doubtful. Berns is still hobbled by a hip pointer which he acquired in the first quarter of last week's win over Baylor.

Co-captain Greg Jorgensen is another questionable performer. The all-America candidate at offensive guard missed most of this week's practices because of muscle spasms in his shoulder.

Defensive back Rene Anderson is expected back after resting a tender ankle most of the past two weeks. But fullback Monte Anthony (shoulder), monster Jim Pillen (hip) and defensive tackle Bill Barnett (leg) will be question marks right up to kickoff.

Quarterback Jeff Quinn, injured last week, is the only player who will definitely miss the game. An injury to Quinn's left leg could hold the Ord sophomore out the rest of the year.

With the 91st consecutive sellout crowd of more than 76,000 expected to pack Memorial Stadium, Corso said he is looking forward to his Lincoln visit.

Pius X makes Ryan feel sick

By Tom Vint
Staff sports writer

About mid-week, Lincoln Pius X coach Vince Aldrich felt an emotional letdown in his No. 3-rated Thunderbolts. Widespread sickness was reported on Friday night's opponent, No. 4-rated Omaha Ryan.

"I saw it coming," said Aldrich. "So I used Lexington of last year on them. It was the same sort of thing then when Lex lost Holtmeier (star quarterback Doug). Our kids had a letdown then and we got beat. I didn't want to see that happen again."

It didn't. The Bolts pumped up just in time, then made a shambles of the game labeled the Class B highlight of the year. Pius and I-back Mike Moran riddled Ryan, 26-0.

The winners did everything right on the soggy Pius field. Thanks largely to Moran, who racked up 210 yards rushing on 23 carries and scored a pair of fourth quarter touchdowns to put the game away.

"Maybe the field and the sickness thing had something to do with the outcome but I thought we played very well," said Aldrich. "I was especially proud of our defense."

"No, our illness didn't affect us any," said Ryan coach Lyn Darrell. "We just didn't play very well. They played on the same field so the field wasn't a factor either. They're just a very good ball club. They deserve to be rated very high in Class B. They'd even be a better than .500 club in the Metro Conference."

Pius wasn't giving Ryan much of a chance in the first half. The Knights managed just one first down while Moran and company were ripping off chunks of yardage going the other way.

On Pius' third possession in the first quarter, quarterback Pat Wiese tossed to Brad Zitek who made a diving catch in the end zone for the first six points. Fred Peterson booted the extra point to give Ryan a 7-0 headache.

Late in the second quarter, Pius did it again. This time Wiese capped a 70-yard drive on a 7-yard keeper around left end. Again Peterson added the extra point and Pius had a 14-0 halftime cushion.

The third quarter had Ryan looking like a different team. Having hit only one of nine passes the first half, Wyszowski connected on four of his first five passes after intermission to twice Spark Ryan into Pius Territory. The first possession ended when Wyszowski mishandled the center snap and Pius' Jack Jablonski recovered at the 46. The second drive ended on Fisher's interception.

The fourth quarter belonged to Moran and the Pius offensive line. Gaping holes opened up for Moran to skoot through. He all but iced the victory early in the fourth quarter with a 33-yard scamper to the end zone, hurdling a defender at the 28.

Less than four minutes later, after Fisher recovered a Ryan fumble at the 49, Moran went 22 yards for his second touchdown, breaking tackles at the 18. With under six minutes to play, Pius was up 26-0.

"I don't want to single anyone out for this win but Mike did have a fine game," said Aldrich. "It was a team effort all the way. I think we played very well. About Wednesday I wasn't so sure we would."

Pius, now 4-0, plays at Omaha Holy Name next Thursday night. Ryan fell to 2-3 with the loss.

Northeast's defense, rain too much for foe

By Chuck Sinclair
Prep Sports Writer

Bellevue — Shutout No. 4 for Lincoln Northeast's touted defense coupled with several fumbles and a clever call on a sloppy field enabled the No. 3-rated Rockets to post a 15-0 triumph over Bellevue East here Friday night.

With a steady drizzle falling on an already rain-drenched field, Northeast grabbed an early advantage when East's Kerry Zubrod, Class A's leading rusher after a 280-yard effort under similar conditions last week, fumbled the ball on each of Bellevue's first two plays of the game.

The second miscue was covered by Northeast linebacker Steve Damkroger on the Chieftains 34-yard line.

Northeast's offense, criticized lately for not being able to score on similar opportunities, took advantage as quarterback Rande Johnson optioned around right end for 11 yards and the score seven plays into the drive.

Joel Dawson added the kick to make it 7-0 with 8:12 remaining in the first period.

Bellevue's offense made it three bobbles in a row when quarterback Dan Mullins fumbled the next offensive snap, but he covered the ball himself.

By the end of the game, Bellevue East had dropped the ball eight times, losing three. Two more fumbles were yet to come in the first quarter.

The Rocket defense, already owners of a few goal line stands this season, came up with two in the mud Friday night. Late in the first quarter Johnson was blindsided going back to pass deep in his own territory and lost the ball on Northeast's six-yard line.

On the very next play, with first and goal, Zubrod coughed up his third of the quarter and Northeast's Tom Ehlers fell on it to end the threat.

The last stand came after the Rockets had apparently locked the game up following coach Bob Els' fourth quarter call of a halfback pass that caught the Chieftains secondary napping for a 43-yard touchdown.

Johnson rolled right, flipped the ball to Pat Neil on a reverse, and he lofted a pass in the vicinity of brothers Matt and Jeff Svoboda.

Junior Jeff came up with the ball on the 20 and senior Matt, wanting to protect his younger brother, cut down the only threatening defender.

A muffed snap from center resulted in a two-point conversion as Johnson calmly pitched wide to kicker Dawson who ran untouched into the end zone.

After Northeast regained possession, Johnson threw his only interception of the night, but Bellevue's Mike Baulch returned it 62 yards to Northeast's 17. And the final stand followed after Bellevue had moved to a first and goal from the four.

Mullins, the state's second leading scorer, was stopped on fourth and one and the Rockets preserved the shutout.

"The kids are beginning to believe in their defense after four shutouts," Els said. "We were a little worried with the condition of the field. With their powerful ground game, we just didn't know if we could dig in and hold them."

The defense responded, limiting Bellevue to just 49 yards rushing on 33 attempts.

"Our scouts did a good job," defensive coach Andy Loehr said. "We had a pretty good idea of what was going to happen most of the time."

Chieftain coach Bill James, in his 21st year at Bellevue but first at East after the school split, credited Northeast's superior line play.

"They were so much quicker than we were," James said. "At times, we had holes open up, but they were closed before we got there."

Northeast, now 5-0 will battle Lincoln East in a Friday night clash at Seacrest Field, while Bellevue, slipping to 3-2, hosts Creighton Prep, also Friday.

Southeast rides fast start to win

By John Colone
North Platte Telegraph

North Platte — In the fairy tale's race between the tortoise and the hare, the rabbit lost because he neglected to take advantage of a fast start. Lincoln Southeast coach Frank Solich may not be putting much faith in that fable these days.

A jackrabbit start against North Platte's bulldogs gave Southeast a 14-0 victory over the as-yet winless hosts. No. 1-rated Southeast claimed its fourth victory in as many starts.

A light mist turned to a drenching rain in the second quarter, but Southeast had already scored twice before the rains came.

Southeast broke 80 yards in 12 plays on its first possession of the game, and 62 yards in nine plays on its second possession for a 14-0 lead.

"It got so bad at the end we couldn't even get the snap to the quarterback," Solich noted. "It was a good thing we got off to a fast start," he added.

Knights' quarterback Vernon Fisher scored both Lincoln Southeast touchdowns, the first on a one-yard sneak and the second on a 12-yard end sweep. His first tally came with four minutes left in the first quarter, and the second with 11:09 remaining in the second period. Kyle Fink booted SE's two PAT's.

Solich agreed with North Platte high coach Bob Starr that eventually the weather made the contest "push and shove" affair. "You can't run an offense when you can't dig

BYU crushes Spartans trounce Beatrice, 63-13 foe, 54-19

By Ken Hambleton
Staff Sports Writer

Lincoln East scored the first five times it had the ball in the first half and rolled to a record 63-13 win over Beatrice Friday night at Seacrest Field.

The Spartans, behind senior quarterback Chip Carmichael, took a 35-0 halftime lead and scored twice in three plays in the second half to hand Beatrice its worst defeat in 30 years.

Carmichael, who hadn't quarterbacked East since last season, engineered a 78-yard scoring drive in eight plays on the Spartans' first possession. Halfback Russ Karr, who scored twice, tallied for East with a 27-yard run around the right end and Wade Morris kicked the first of nine consecutive extra points to put the Spartans ahead 7-0 with 6:58 left in the first quarter.

Carmichael hit Dana Childs on a 17-yard pass to set up Jim Strasheim's 38 yard touchdown run for the next score. A 20-yard Carmichael pass to Karr and runs by Karr and Strasheim moved the ball to the Orangemen one-yard line where Strasheim popped over to give East a 21-0 lead with 10:11 left in the second quarter.

Carmichael scored the next two East touchdowns with runs from the six and two yard lines, giving the Spartans a 35-0 lead at the half.

East scored on long runs in the second half as Todd Hinkle ran 32 yards, Todd Scherer 37 yards, Steve Vensky, 61 yards, and Karr, 51 yards over the hapless Orangemen.

"I was very pleased to see our offensive game pick up from last week's game with Fremont (a 21-14 loss)," said East coach Lee Zentic, whose club is now 3-2.

"With Chip Carmichael and our blocking, plus some really great runs by Strasheim and Karr we were able to show what we can do," said Zentic.

"We'll need the momentum from this game for next week's game with Lincoln Northeast," Zentic added. "We also had a fine defensive game, holding a pretty good offensive Beatrice team scoreless in the first half."

East limited Beatrice to no first downs and minus-3 yards total in the first half and the Orangemen didn't cross their 38-yard line until midway through the third quarter when the Spartan reserve defense was called for two 15-yard penalties.

Beatrice scored on the drive, aided by five East penalties, when Dave Nitz ran one yard off tackle. The other Orangemen tally came on an 11-yard pass from Steve Carlson to Tom Mack late in the fourth quarter.

"We really didn't have anything to be unhappy about in the first half, meaning no mistakes," said

Zentic. "We got to play all 44 of our players considerable and that's good too."

"Seeing our offensive line come firing off the line like they were tonight makes me feel we're still in the race," said Zentic, whose Spartans have yet to face Lincoln High, Northeast or Southeast.

East will face Northeast Friday night at Seacrest Field, while Beatrice, now 0-5 will host Kearney.

LHS nips Scottsbluff

By Tim Winters
Scottsbluff Star-Herald

Scottsbluff — Lincoln High's Dan Gerlach completed only one pass against Scottsbluff Friday night.

But that pass, a 19-yard strike to Todd Richards in the fourth quarter set up the Links' go-ahead touchdown in a 21-17 victory over the Bearcats.

The pass to Richards put Lincoln High on the Bearcats' 25-yard line. Five plays later, Gerlach plunged over from the one to erase a 17-14 Scottsbluff lead. Jeff Barron added the extra point kick.

Scottsbluff's record fell to 3-2. It was the second loss to a Lincoln school this year (Lincoln East defeated the Bearcats, 33-0, two weeks ago). The Links are 2-3.

The Bearcats had tied the score on the first play of the second half. With a first and ten on the Links' 40 following the kickoff, Gerlach rolled out and attempted a pitch to a trailing halfback, who fumbled.

Scottsbluff's Jim Carlson scooped the ball at the Lincoln High 41 and raced in for the score, putting the Bearcats within two, 14-12. Quarterback Bryon Wilson then went on the option for the two-point conversion to tie the score.

With 8:41 remaining, Wilson hit a 35-yard field goal to give Scottsbluff a 17-14 lead.

The lead was shortlived.

Taking over on their 28 after the kickoff, the Links used the running of Doug Moore and Gerlach to move to the Bearcats' 45. Gerlach then hit Richards for his only completion to the Scottsbluff 25. Five

Tarkanian makes decision favors Lincoln

Las Vegas, Nev. (UPI) — Jerry Tarkanian won a court order Friday to remain head basketball coach at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas, in a legal decision that may shake the foundations of the NCAA investigatory procedures.

District Judge James Brennan said Tarkanian had been the victim of star chamber proceedings by the NCAA and trial by ambush.

The court said that at least one NCAA investigator who had sworn to get Tarkanian had an obsession which verged on paranoia.

Tarkanian, who was notified by UNLV he would be severed from the athletic program Sept. 9, filed a complaint seeking a declaratory judgment and permanent injunction against the university to prevent the action.

Brennan, in granting the permanent injunction, in effect prohibited UNLV from carrying out the NCAA demand that Tarkanian be sanctioned. The NCAA placed the basketball team on probation for two years and asked disciplinary action against Tarkanian for allegedly illegal recruiting procedures and preferred treatment of athletes.

The NCAA action against UNLV and Tarkanian prompted Rep. James Santini, D-Nev., to call for a Congressional investigation into NCAA investigative procedures. Rep. John Moss, D-Calif., head of the Oversight and Investigations Committee, has said he would have a decision within a few days on whether a probe would be conducted.

Tarkanian said, after the court ruling, that he would be glad to testify before the Congressional committee.
